Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, please write only enough material to adequately cover the subject. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, although names may be withheld on request.

Dear Editor:

In my simple layman's way, I have a simple layman's question to ask. Why are developers allowed to go in anywhere and the developers allowed to make their profit, but the taxpayers forced to pay for the sewer system that goes with the development? It isn't just the aesthetic impact on the ecology that development causes, but a hard practical dollars blow to taxpayers that everyone of them brings.

The professional moneymakers undoubtedly have believable answers to my question, but I will still bet that if they had to pay for the sewer system they impose on us, "progress, change and growth" would be almost non-existent, at least in Carmel Valley.

If every wild development is stopped, it will be the toilet that stops it and we can put up a monument to it. Nothing brings on preserving a healthy environment more than being unable to afford an unhealthy one.

Melodious phrases of keeping a good ecological balance flow smoothly from developers of any kind when that is all they can afford. And it is not necessarily newcomers to an area that are for unlimited development. It takes "old timers" of 20 to 50 years to sell land to newcomers or outside developers.

And it is not all land that is now so heavily taxed that owners can't afford to hold it. A lot of it is land that people bought here years ago or are still buying with the precise idea of developing it either themselves or selling it to others to do so.

Many of these people have grown up in Carmel, have had the good of living in its different atmosphere for years, so they are willing to sell to the highest bidder, take their money to other places that aren't spoiled yet, or isolate themselves in large acreages here so they don't feel the disturbance they've created, and never mind the peasants left to pay in taxes for their development.

If the Carmel Sanitary District can force developers to pay for their own sewage and the roads and all the other new services they make, Carmel Rancho II, Carmel Lago, Casas de Carmel, Carmel Rancho I, Sambos, Riverwood, Val Verde Drive ad nauseum, just wouldn't be.

To end on at least a pleasant note, we all must say you really have made a real newspaper out of The Pine Cone since you bought it, and you are doing a terrific job. I'm sure you are even giving competition to your competitors for the first time!

I was a little non-plussed at the article giving earnest aid to the single girl, but it was certainly serious, explicit, knowledgeable and practical. And maybe if I were 30 years younger and single, I would make earnest use of it. As it is, I will save the copy to brief any young ladies I know in need of advice.

Sincerely,
RUTH MAPSTEAD
Box 3047, Carmel

Editor's note: The Carmel Sanitary District does impose a connection charge for each dwelling unit or commercial structure constructed within the district. It has not, apparently, discouraged development.

Dear Editor:

Your paper quoted me recently on Hatton Canyon but not quite making my position clear and I have had inquiries. I have fought against a typical freeway design in Hatton Canyon but for a suitable roadway for through traffic.

A legitimate freeway is primarily one where normal access by adjacent property owners and by residents on side roads is denied or greatly limited. That is what we need in Hatton Canyon. The rights of way were properly acquired by the State more than a decade ago.

The long delay in building such a road for routing the through traffic away from residential cross-streets and the High School is effectively reducing access to those homes and the school by allowing a huge volume of through traffic to dangerously interfere with local traffic. That is creating what I called a "bastard freeway" and any major widening of present Route One south of the High School will multiply the damage to property owners and the traffic hazards to all who have to use that route.

I believe the damage from delay warrants the State giving the construction a specially high priority. I am confident that with such priority the Highway Division can and will redesign the canyon roadway to be truly the Scenic Highway it is now officially designated, and that they will retain the natural beauty of the canyon for the thousands who will use that urgently needed throughway.

Dear Editor:

Monterey Peninsula voters may have noted the recent news from Marin County, where several communities have overwhelmingly endorsed Open Space propositions.

In April, Lucas Valley voted to purchase a 285-acre hillside and keep it in permanent open space. In September, San Rafael endorsed a $2.25 million open space acquisition bond. Last Tuesday, October 3, Tiburon passed a 27c per $100 assessed valuation measure to acquire open space.

Marin County has a county-wide open space measure on the November ballot similar to our Proposition A. The chairman of the board of supervisors is reported to have said, "This movement to protect Marin County from Southern-California-type sprawl has been growing," and he expects a 60 percent voter approval of the measure.

Forty-one years ago, the East Bay Regional Park District was established, model for our Proposition A. This famed park is a great success and all who live in the Oakland-Berkeley area are grateful for its existence.

Marin County now feels the pressure of urbanization and threatened loss of its beauty. What the East Bay people have done and what Marin County voters are expected to do indicates their concern for open space. Surely we can do as much on the Peninsula by voting Yes on Proposition A.

Sincerely,
HULDA BONESTELL

Dear Editor:

After reading Section III in the October 5, 1972 issue entitled "Commercial development mushrooms at mouth of Valley," it again brings up the sad fact that all trucks, buses and cars must use Highway No. 1 to get there.

An even further sad reality is that most of the commercial development will be completed before the Hatton Freeway is ever built.

Sincerely yours,

Monterey County Planning Commission
County Court House
Salinas, Calif. 93901
Subject: "Tickle Pink" motel extension; rezoning application affecting 1 acre now zoned R1DB4 & 1 acre zoned R4D.

Ladies and gentlemen:

At its October 5 meeting the CVPOA Board of Directors passed a resolution opposing the present rezoning application on the following grounds:

(1) The density is too high for the area;

(2) Highway No. 1 is dangerously inadequate at that location to handle the traffic that would be generated by the development;

(3) Serious sanitary problems;

(4) The proposed rezoning of 1 acre presently zoned R1DB4 would be inconsistent with the Public Services and Facilities - Land Use Element of the County General Plan (adopted in 1970) for the Carmel Highlands and Riviera Study Area which provides as follows: (p. 21) "The plan area is best suited for and shall be limited to single family residential development. A one-acre minimum building site with design control shall be maintained, except where zoned otherwise."

(5) The proposed development, lying in the scenic coastal area west of Highway No. 1, would clearly have a significant effect upon the environment of the area. Accordingly, under the recent California Supreme Court interpretation of the state Environmental Quality Act of 1970, there must be a finding that the development conforms to the Conservation Element contained in the County General Plan. We believe that the proposed development is directly contrary to the following principles and standards set out in the Conservation Element:

"(3) The spectacular scenery of the Monterey Coastal Area should be conserved;

"(4) The Monterey County shoreline should be protected wherever possible for the enjoyment of the public;

"(6) Careful control of all structures along the ocean front and offshore should be maintained;

"(7) The areas of outstanding historic, scenic and cultural heritage should be conserved and protected;

"(8) Land should be integrated with the road to form scenic corridors along scenic highways."

Under the circumstances we do not see how a finding of conformity with the Conservation Element could be supported.

Thank you for considering our position.

Respectfully,
VICTORIA GIBSON
Secretary, Carmel Valley Property Owners Assn.

Dear Editor:

Looking through my Oct. 5 Pine Cone, I asked myself the question:

Did that journalistically alert editor miss the delightful "Strain at gnat, swallow a camel" irony of the council's last (Oct. 3) meeting when they long debated without conclusion the propriety of allowing the Carmel Forest Theater Guild to meet in the (dilapidated) Boy Scout House to plan old time summer entertainment for Carmel citizens?

They then voted an approval of ten cents per hundred on the Carmel Tax Rolls producing an income of about $300,000 for a regional planning venture having no top tax limit and after few minutes of pro argument and no minutes of con argument.

The odd feature of the evening's performance was the ease with which the camel was swallowed hook, line and sinker.

Dear Editor:

The Monterey Peninsula Branch of the American Association of University Women wishes to go on record as giving strong support for the passage of Proposition 20, the Coastal Zone Conservation Act. We feel this is a sound measure that is needed to protect the coastline from unwise and uncoordinated development and to prevent the permanent loss of irreplacable coastal zone resources.

In addition, City Councils and Boards of Supervisors will be relieved of the high pressures put on them by land developers for zoning changes, as these matters will be decided by the appropriate Regional Commission in accordance with the objectives of the Plan, namely, that any proposed development will not have any substantial adverse environmental effect, and that it is consistent with the declarations of the people. (Chapter I, Sec. 27001 of the Plan).

Sincerely,
DIANE BOWER,
President

Dear Editor:

Because news headlines describing the Sept. 26 meeting to determine highway priorities in Monterey County are sometimes misinterpreted, I would like to outline the tally of public sentiment in favor of early construction of the scenic highway through Hatton Canyon.

Mr. Norberg stated that he represented a majority because he received the most votes for councilman in the election in the City of Carmel. Not so. There are only 4,525 residents in the entire city, and Mr. Norberg received 863 votes. (Those voters were not casting a ballot for or against the highway. The great interest was saving the Carmel Library on Ocean Avenue).

The committee favoring early construction in the canyon obtained 1,078 signatures (votes) in just 16 days, and can obtain thousands more.

Additionally, the Carmel Knolls Property Owners Association "conceded recently that some sort of roadway was necessary in the canyon," and "within the last year, the cities of Monterey and Carmel, the Monterey Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Supervisors have adopted resolutions calling for a speedup in construction of the freeway." (Quotes from The Pine Cone, Sept. 21, 1972.)

And: "...the board of directors of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association...agreed to urge the State Division of Highways to give the matter the highest of priorities." (Quoted from the Monterey Peninsula Herald Sept. 22, 1972.)

Mr. Bordonaro and his family interests have begun a cluster of closely spaced houses at the foot of Hatton Canyon, when they were fully aware of the urgency of the canyon construction; he built a home on the other end of the canyon with the same sure knowledge of future road development. He states that he represents only himself, and not Carmel Knolls property owners.

A further statement, credited to Mr. Al Clark, former chairman of the highway commission, should not go unchallenged: "The same group that's here tonight asking for priority came to us five years ago and asked us to have the Hatton Canyon project taken out." Not true. The people represented by this group have long recognized that need for a highway through the canyon is a fact of modern life and, further, are confident that design and landscaping and proper attention to esthetics will be furnished by the Division of Highways. Carmel Hill is a tribute to that argument.

Pine knots:

Let's get our planners to do some planning

By AL EISNER

THE AREA PLANNING COMMISSION and its consultants, Hahn, Wise and Associates, have been subjected to harsh criticism for the concepts embodied in the proposed new Area Plan for the Monterey Peninsula. In addition to the content of the Plan, they have also been blasted by the large property owners and conservationists alike for the method of presentation.

At the seemingly interminable hearings on the Plan these past several months, the large property owners and developers were able to amend the original Sketch Plan which had scaled down or deleted several development plans which were a part of the existing Master Plan. Conservationists were temporarily placated by the addition of a "Critical Review Process" to the Plan, which calls for hearings on the impact any large development would have on the environment, and also on taxes. Many are still unhappy with the densities suggested in the proposed Plan.

The criticism most frequently repeated by the area planning commission's advisory committee and by interested property owners' groups and conservation organizations, is the failure of the Plan to project the ultimate environmental carrying capacity of the Peninsula and Carmel Valley areas. It would seem elemental that any new Plan would start from that base. Once the estimated total population figure is arrived at, then planners can decide precisely where the development would be suitable, critics have said.

The planners have also been criticized for the manner in which the Plan, in its various stages, has been presented and discussed by all interested parties. In a full-age advertisement in last week's Pine Cone, former County Supervisor Tom Hudson, whose family owns the 1800-acre Point Lobos Ranch, scolded the planners for the "chaos" the consultants have produced in their attempts to update the existing Plan.

The Citizens' Advisory Committee report (published in full in last week's Pine Cone) states: "Of all the shortcomings of the Plan none is more critical than the failure to provide a holding capacity. It is a requirement that must be fulfilled if we are to preserve our life quality. The philosophy of the Plan is inclined to promote expansion until it starts to hurt, then slow down. This is a blueprint for destruction..."

Aside from pitifully small pockets that would be set aside for parks and recreation areas, all—repeat ALL—of the Peninsula and Carmel Valley is in the hands of private property owners. The residents of the area are to hope, then, that the property owners and the land developers will exercise good judgment and cooperate with the county to preserve a veneer of open space. This would be accomplished largely by clustering housing and commercial developments and dedicating the areas visible from highways to open space.

By adopting a defensive position and reacting to the loudest voices, the consultants have abandoned an integrated planning approach, and are working on a piece-meal basis. If this continues, we are fated, like the lemming, to march to our own destruction.

WHILE I WAS despairing over the direction the Plan seemed to be taking, somebody dropped a copy of a recent issue of the Pacific Sun (a weekly newspaper published in San Rafael, Marin County) on my desk. Enclosed with the issue was a 12-page supplement titled "A User's Guide to the Marin Countywide Plan."

The supplement was a revelation.

I learned, after phone calls to Steve MacNamara, publisher of the Pacific Sun and Sol Silver, director of advance planning for Marin County, that the Guide was prepared by the county at an expense of several thousands of dollars, and inserted as a paid advertisement in the Sun, the San Rafael (daily) Independent-Journal, and the weekly Point Reyes Light. (More about that later.)

On the first page of the Guide, an introduction declares:

"There Comes a Time to Choose.

"The rising taxes, the building-over of the green land. The clogging of highways with endless masses of cars. The inflation of housing prices. The growth of a one-class society. These are the changes in Marin which we endure but do not welcome—changes which are hurting our county and hurting it badly.

"And all this isn't happening just by accident. It isn't something a few one-shot limited 'solutions' are going to fix. It's all part of a pattern, a cycle which feeds itself, destructive and familiar.

" 'Business as usual' in Marin is taking us all too plainly into the kind of future we don't want and can't afford.

"Do we have to accept what is happening? Does Marin have to go the way of a hundred ruined Anywheres that were charming once and worth living in? Or is there something we can do? The planners in Marin think there is.

"We have a chance right now to get a bold and comprehensive plan enacted: A new kind of plan for the county and its cities. It doesn't look much like the older plans we've seen, the colored maps that show everywhere the same standard suburbia. It doesn't sound much like the older plans.

"That's why it has a chance of making a difference for us in Marin.

"The Marin Countywide Plan isn't a fix-it kit for all problems. It isn't the only way of dealing with the future, but it is a workable way—if people want it to be; it can be a new way.

"There comes a time when you have to choose. And in Marin County...right now is the time."

Just substitute "Monterey Peninsula" for "Marin" in the above introduction, and you'd have a rallying cry for a weary citizenry that might be on the verge of losing hope.

THERE ARE STRIKING parallels between the problems facing Marin and those on the Peninsula. There are equally striking differences in the manner in which the two areas have approached the planning process.

The "User's Guide" starts with a discussion of "Today's Problems," and right up there at the top of the list is—you guessed it—"Population Growth!" A chart shows a sharp difference between the "Market Projection" of 364,000 in the county in 1990 vs. the "Plan Projection" of 286,000, and states flatly that the Plan "would set a limit on population growth."

The Peninsula's population growth is going to be guided by the land developers, apparently, who are going to be guided by "economic feasibility."

The second problem defined in the Plan is "Economic Diversity." The Plan points out that economic diversity is needed, and that 77 percent of the tax base comes from property taxes.

"Environmental Quality" is the third problem defined in the Marin Plan. Under the Plan, 41 percent of the eastern urban corridor would be set aside for permanent open space, 37 percent would be developed and 22 percent available for development by 1990. Virtually all of the coastal recreation and inland rural corridors would be set aside for public open space, conservation zones and agriculture. A miniscule portion (perhaps 5-10 percent) of the open spaces of West Marin would be utilized for developed villages and for future village expansion.

The proposed Peninsula Plan does not venture a guess as to what percentage of our area would be set aside for open space. On close reading, however, it becomes apparent that virtually ALL of the Peninsula and Carmel Valley would ultimately be developed, since it is owned or controlled by large property owners and development companies.

The Marin Plan then addresses itself to "New Goals for Marin's Future," dealing in turn with each of the three major problems defined above. Among the goals are (1) "Discourage rapid or disruptive population growth but encourage social and economic diversity, across the county and within neighborhoods;" (2) "Achieve greater economic balance for Marin by increasing the number of jobs for residents, and by adding to the supply of housing for some of the people who now commute into Marin but who would like to live here;" (3) "Keep the quality of the environment high, and achieve high quality in what is built, through a balanced system of transportation, open space and land use." The Marin Plan then spells out how all of these goals could be achieved.

The proposed Peninsula Plan avoids discussion of some of these matters, or dusts them off superficially.

AFTER A DISCUSSION of the Marin Plan in brief, complete with detailed maps and charts, the Marin planners then discuss "Making the New Plan Work." This section handles such things as "What Local Governments Can Do," "What the Present Countywide Agencies Can Do," and "New Agencies and Why We Need Them."

A chart follows this section, with detailed figures on "Estimated Public Cost to Carry Out the Plan to 1990." This chart includes items such as 1972-1990 per capita costs; total 1972-1990 costs; income from grants, subsidies and taxes; and new funding sources required.

The Plan then describes the scenario of "Marin With the Plan" and "Marin Without the Plan."

Finally, and perhaps most important, one section is devoted to a questionnaire form in which readers are asked to "Tell the Planners What You Think." Planner Silver told me that hundreds upon hundreds of these forms have already been filled out and returned in the week or so since the Guide was published.

Tables on the back page list the names of the various decision-makers on the county and city level; sources of further information and a discussion of procedures before the Plan can be adopted.

THE MARIN APPROACH is a refreshing breath of air after the confusion and tumult created by the presentation of our proposed plan.

The Pine Cone was criticized for publishing the Sketch Plan "prematurely," (that is, before the decisions could be made) which is patently ridiculous. The document was prepared at public expense, was presented to a public body at a public meeting and was clearly in the public domain.

We have covered the meetings of the area planning commission intensively because we felt they were a matter of great public concern.

When the Sketch Plan was finally patched into a Proposed Plan, the area planners decided that any interested party could buy a copy of the fat document for $10. When a copy was made available to The Pine Cone, we published an eight-page supplement, complete with map, at our own expense — hoping for as much input from concerned individuals and organizations as possible.

Funds for distribution of the "User's Guide to the Marin Countywide Plan" were appropriated by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Our local planning and legislative bodies have depended on the press to get the word out to the people. While speakers are tolerated at the public meetings, they are often brushed off with a "thank you"," and patted on the head.

The contrast is almost beyond comprehension.

WHERE DO WE GO from here?

Well, first, we're mailing a copy of this editorial with a copy of the Marin Plan to concerned planners, elected officials and individuals. The Marin planners were kind enough to supply us with 25 copies of their guide for this purpose. In addition, we're going to furnish a copy to the Harrison Memorial Library, Carmel City Hall and the County Planning Dept. offices in Salinas. Take a good look at it. You'll see what enlightened planning could be like.

Then, I'd like to suggest to our planners that they take a good, hard look at the patch-quilt Proposed Plan which is now under study. They should make a strong plea for more funds to do a proper updating. And, perhaps this time, we ought to allow the county's capable planning department, under Planning Director Ed De Mars to have a crack at it.

If we could begin to approach the concepts in the Marin plan with the same kind of attitude on the part of our planners, maybe many of us could begin to again believe in the credibility of our public officials.

OUR PERIPATETIC collector of old photographs, Pat Hathaway, dusted this one off for the enjoyment of our readers. Looks like an ancient pickup truck carried an enthusiastic bunch of merrymakers on an outing sometime between 1915 and 1920. We don't know where, when or who, and would appreciate hearing from any of our readers who might have been a member of the group or who recognizes anyone in the picture. (Note the wooden spokes on the car-truck, complete with wooden running board...say, whatever happened to running boards anyway?)

REMEMBER WHEN?

50 YEARS AGO:

From The Pine Cone, October 14, 1922:

PAUL E. TROTTER has petitioned the Superior Court for letters of administration on the estate of Mrs. Adelaide B. Trotter of Palo Colorado.

Every effort is being made to dispose of the entire block of season tickets for the Artists' Concert Series to be given at the Monterey theater, beginning Thursday, October 24.

Florence Macbeth will be the first of the group of artists to appear. The proceeds of these concerts will be devoted to Peninsula charities and are under the direction of several patronesses in Carmel, Monterey and Pacific Grove.

Monterey-Jamesburg Mail Stage will call for passengers to Carmel-By-The-Sea. Stage leaves Monterey Postoffice at 9:30 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

During the wet season travelers on the Carmel hill should drive very cautiously. There is nothing so easy to skid on as a wet asphalt pavement. On wet surface concrete it is different. The latter material will go down on Ocean avenue.

25 YEARS AGO:

From The Pine Cone, October 10, 1947:

THE CITY COUNCIL, the planning commission, the city attorney, the city clerk, the building inspector, everybody who haunts city hall, are going to have a very rough time of it for the next few weeks from the people who own 25 foot lots, but what the city council, the planning commission, the city attorney, etc., etc., etc. are trying to do about the 25 foot lots, though possibly painful to the lot owners, will be of inestimable benefit to the community at large, so it behooves the rest of us to give our city officials all the aid, comfort and encouragement we can, so they will find the strength to face the dark days ahead and emerge from their travail with an ordinance that will banish forever the threat of a string of motor courts and Santa Cruz beach cottages on Carmel's lovely, woodsy, newly surfaced Junipero Street.

The man whom Ripley featured in his "Believe It Or Not" series for having attended 100 public schools, before graduating at the age of 11, is living among us and supporting his family by unadulterated wits. He is H. Vernor Dixon, known as Harry, author of the ferry command stories which appeared in Collier's at intervals during the war, who is now jabbing the faithful typewriter, turning out another of his characteristic clipper stories for a national magazine.

A representative of the State Division of Highways will arrive here early next week to confer with Superintendent of Schools Stuart Mitchell on what traffic safety devices should be installed at the junction of Ocean Avenue and Highway No. 1, where the students cross on their way to and from the high school.

10 YEARS AGO:

From The Pine Cone, October 11, 1962:

DETERMINING to their absolute satisfaction that the Studio Theatre, once it had a license to serve beer with luncheon meals, would not seek to combine entertainment with them, in contravention of a city ordinance prohibiting such a mixture, the city council Tuesday voted merely to take notice of the application of the owners for an on-sale beer license.

Brian Stock will portray Tennessee novelist James Agee as he was at the age of six when All The Way Home opens Friday at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre.

Sixth grade students at Sunset, River and Carmelo schools will spend a week camping in the Santa Cruz mountains starting on 29 October when the first classes, accompanied by their teachers, leave for Redwood Glen Camp to take part in the Tri-County Science-Conservation Education program.

Arne F. Halle, vice president and manager of Crocker-Anglo National Bank's Carmel office, has observed the anniversary of his 35th year in banking.

The Monterey County Symphony Association and the Peninsula and Salinas chapters of the Symphony Guild have consolidated, according to Fletcher Dutton, president of the association.

only in Carmel...

By EMILY BROWN

SOME CARMELITES don't like the Village's mini-parks which ornament downtown streets. But Marjorie Haller discovered a local dog who does. On busy Dolores street a big, shaggy animal was having a peaceful nap, quite undisturbed by the ceaseless streams of pedestrians. Mrs. Haller stopped to smile and say something neighborly to the dog. The beast opened one eye and went back to sleep. He was well inside the leash-law area but at the time he was observed, no policeman had hauled him in.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS? In Carmel? That's a typical shocked response. But one home owner braves it anyway. Her backyard is too shady for roses--which she loves -- so she purchased some fake ones, plastic, and spiked them into some green shrubbery. "It's the visual impact and enjoyment, that count," she insists.

BY WAY of gardens, we'd like to pass on a warning given by a reader. "Don't put hair spray on if you 're going to work in your yard," she cautioned. "The spray attracts bees, and there are lots of them in Carmel right now." The lady warns from experience. She had just sprayed her own coiffeur and stepped outdoors when four bees instantly lit in her hair. Another made a landing on her chin and stung her, but she was able to brush off the ones in her hair without being harmed.

AN OLD match book, wedged for decades in a desk drawer, came to light recently. Against a black background, gold ink shows a sketch of a big building and lettering reading, "Hotel La Ribera, European Plan, Lincoln and 7th, Carmel-by-the-Sea, Phone 800." Recognize it? That's the old name of the present Cypress West Hotel.

THIS HAS got to be the most "only in Carmel" Only in Carmel we ever ran across. This is a Carmel couple who never leave the city limits! Well, almost never.

Their shop and home are in the incorporated confines. She teaches, so she does have to venture over the boundary. "And," confesses the wife, "my husband does know how to get to Holman's in Pacific Grove and the State Theatre in Monterey."

He is originally from an inland valley and a sixth generation Californian. She is only fifth generation and grew up in the San Francisco area. And she did break the "only in Carmel" tradition for a late summer vacation with a former college classmate. They went down to Tickle Pink Motor Inn. In Carmel Highlands.

YOUNG BACHELOR about town teaches photography at Santa Catalina School for Girls, a Catholic preparatory school in Monterey. With some amusement he told a young lady here that the teaching nuns were conducting a course on Sex and Marriage, and had invited the young bachelor to give one of the lectures.

His young female friend thought this was hilarious. "Why, you don't know any more about marriage than the nuns!" she laughed.

"Well, I lectured the students on sex," he parried defensively. "And I do know more about that than the nuns!"

And he does, too.

LOCAL MAN lost his prescription sunglasses on Carmel beach. Bad enough. But he lost them on Sandcastle Sunday when 5,000 people were trampling the sand. How's that for bad luck?

On a chance, he checked with the Police Department and behold! They had been turned in by a good-citizen young lady who declined to give her name. How's that for good luck?

Incidentally, Carmel's PD frequently finds eyeglasses or has them turned in by other finders. The Department keeps the glasses a year, then if they are not claimed, ships them off to needy persons in poorer countries.

YOUTH IS a Gift of Nature. Age is a Work of Art.

Carmel lost two of its special people last week, and some of the special, nice things about them aren't what go into obituaries.

Dr. Fred Perske wasn't a "big splash" special man, although we understand that before coming to Carmel years ago he was mayor of Catalina Island for eight years.

He loved people and he trusted them. If you didn't have the money or your checkbook with you, he'd say, "That's okay. Next time you're by this way, just drop by and pay me." And he didn't send you a statement.

He had a fund of stories because he like to entertain and cheer people. He was a kind man -- even fed stray cats for years. He was a master cabinetmaker in his hobby workshop, but he made lovely things only to give away.

His life ended a little too soon, but the way he'd have wanted it to if he'd written the script himself: he had just won a small pot at the gaming table in Nevada.

Roxanna Rodgers was special because she was indominatable. Only days before she died at 84, she was doing her "thing" -- walking two and three miles a day, managing her own rental properties -- and making her own smart hats!

She walked uptown every day for midday dinner and to chat with friends and keep up with events. Then perhaps to the Post Office or bank or other errands. Her pace was slow but steady, her voice firm, like her resolve about life in general.

You never saw Roxanna Rodgers in downtown Carmel without a fashionable hat and quite likely gloves too, to finish off her up-to-date costume. The native Philadelphia in her never gave in to her adopted casual California.

[illegible] at its outset set the pace for her determination and ingenuity. She was barely a teenager when she asked her father for money to buy a new Easter hat. "You already have lots of hats!" he replied.

But none of them were brand new or an Easter hat. Not to be crossed, the Roxanna of seventy-plus years ago took apart three of her older hats and reassembled portions of each into a ravishing Easter chapeau. The very first time she'd ever tried her hand at millinery.

In what was probably adolescent revenge for this male chauvinism, Roxanna modeled the hat for him. "See," she said defiantly, "I have a new hat anyway."

"It's beautiful," he exclaimed in sincere admiration. "Now I won't ever have to buy you new hats."

"And he didn't," she admitted, telling about the episode not long ago, with a characteristic twinkling-smile.

Carmel cops to get higher pay for special duty

New salaries and charges for special police officers were established through a resolution passed unanimously by the council at last Tuesday's regular monthly meeting.

Police Chief Clyde Klaumann requested the upgrading so that Carmel policemen will be "on a par with Seaside and Monterey." He added that the men make less on special duty when they have to put on a uniform and go out on their own time than they do during regular working hours.

Klaumann added that the new rate would also apply for firemen on special duty.

The resolution states that "Any person furnished a special officer at their request shall pay the city for the services of such officer at the hourly rate of $7.25, with a minimum of $14.50 for the first two hours of such service. Of said hourly rate, $6.75 shall be paid to the employee, and 50c shall be paid to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea for administrative overhead.

"If employees of other governmental agencies are employed by this city for the above service, said rates shall apply, provided the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea shall pay all charges to said governmental agency which shall, in turn, reimburse its own employees."

AN AUTHORIZATION of $26,000 for the reconstruction of Sixth Avenue between Junipero and Monte Verde was approved by a unanimous council vote.

The gas tax project, according to Askew, will include sidewalk repair, improvement of storm drainage and completion of undergrounding. The forestry department also has plans to replant 15 to 20 trees.

IN OTHER business, the council approved the temporary employment of Melvin V. Loar as a gardener at the Flanders estate at a salary of $185 per month.

Advancements in employment ratings of Cecil Potter, police desk officer, and Paul Fisher, police officer, were approved and authorizations for the hirding of a new animal control officer (to replace Shan De Wey) and a new building inspection secretary were granted.

WE ARE NOT SUPERSTITIOUS*

--and are going ahead with plans to open our new Carmel business tomorrow, Friday the Thirteenth (gulp). Just three years ago we opened our first shop in La Jolla, California, featuring miniatures for collectors and smallish decorative accessories and giftware for the home. We've literally become a house of miniatures because of our La Jolla sales trends. Of course by their purchases our customers have shown us what to carry. We are so proud that visitors from all over the United States who vacation annually in Southern California come to see us again each year. And tourists like our things (they've told us) because they are small, easy to pack or mail; because our merchandise is not gimmicky "stuff" but rather giftware of permanent value and significance; and because we're moderately priced with something for everyone's budget. Come and see! AND, we confess pride as well in the substantial percentage of our sales made to local regular customers who continue to send their friends to find our shop.

Well, here we are, opening our second shop in Carmel! All small things--- for collectors, doll house items, wall decor, miniature floral arrangements, miniature floral containers, ceramic sculpture in caricature poses in areas of medicine, sports, music, etc., and original art items by several outstanding Pacific Coast artists. Vacationers and residents alike, please find time to drop in today (or soon!) and look us over. We want to greet you. Where ARE we? In Lincoln Lane, on Lincoln between 5th and 6th. We call ourselves The Impulse Shoppe. No kidding!

Urges commission: 'Err on conservative side'

Sierra Club comments on proposed plan for Monterey Peninsula area

Statement by Ventana Chapter, Sierra Club on Preliminary Monterey Peninsula Area Plan (Submitted to Monterey Peninsula Area Planning Commission, August, 1972).

The Ventana Chapter recognizes that the Monterey Peninsula Area Planning Commission has been faced with an extremely complex task: to produce a plan for this area that would be at once precise and general, and that would set short-run limits that would surely have long-term implications. We recognize, too, that the Commission has been bombarded for months with both advice and criticism, some constructive, some redundant, all wordy. Therefore, we will limit our comments on the Preliminary Plan to a few issues, make our suggestions as specific as possible, and try to remain brief.

(1). We heartily approve Point 4 in the list of six initial Recommendations on page 35, urging "creation of an Open Space District to acquire and manage open space and easements or similar rights to open space as shown in the Plan." This Chapter is currently supporting Proposition A on the November ballot, which would create a Monterey Peninsula Park and Open Space District—exactly what the Plan recommends. So the voters will have a chance to implement the Plan even before its final adoption.

An alternative implementation proposal, contained near the back of the Plan, suggests that an open space conservation district might be set up as a sub-agency of a Regional Government. While we have long urged regional approaches to all environment problems, we are fearful that such a Regional Government is not likely to become a reality soon. In the meantime, we believe Proposition A would meet the urgent need to begin acquiring some of the specific lands the Plan says ought to remain in open space.

(2). We applaud the concept of "Critical Review Process," and urge that it be moved from the last page, where it now sits as an Appendix to Point 3 in the primary Recommendations on pages 34 and 35. It would thus replace the twin Recommendations for "Planned Rural Communities" and "incentive zoning," which we believe would do nothing that cannot already be done under existing powers of the County Planning Commission and County Board of Supervisors. For example, if a developer uses cluster concepts and undergrounds utilities, he has done nothing that deserves reward in the form of higher density than his basic acreage allows.

We urge the Commission to consider carefully the recommendations for strengthening the Critical Review Process that have been made by a variety of individuals and organizations. For example, there is need to regulate more carefully the cutting of trees, to revise the present county grading ordinances so that they will truly protect the environment, and to provide stronger design controls and more specific criteria for adequate landscaping. Perhaps the Commission could instruct the consultant or the county planning staff to prepare proposals for precise definitions of such terms as "hazard lands," "available and adequate," and "reasonably contiguous." The Critical Review Process calls for holding "cut and fill...to a minimum." "A minimum" needs definition in terms of numbers.

(3). We urge that Recommendation 1 on page 34 be strengthened, not only to make the Area Planning Commission a permanent body, but to empower it to act as the Planning Commission for the Monterey Peninsula Plan Area. In this capacity, the Commission would have its own planning staff and would make its recommendations and proposals directly to the County Board of Supervisors.

(4). We applaud the proposals for hiking trails and bike paths on page 86. We urge that specific requirements for such trails and paths be incorporated in the county subdivision ordinance.

(5). We believe the Commission should search with care for any suggestion, even implied, that this Preliminary Plan is opening the way for increasing density limits which have already been set by existing plans. For example, the density of Carmel Highlands should reflect densities provided by the Coastal Master Plan, and the densities indicated for Carmel Valley in the new Area Plan should reflect the minimum figures so painfully arrived at in that valley's master plan. The G zoning in Carmel Valley should be eliminated.

(6). We are concerned that the Plan's discussion about population growth is descriptive rather than prescriptive. The planners tell us that the Peninsula is apparently not going to grow as fast as we thought in 1966. But then they offer density potentials which might conceivably lead to a population of 210,000 by 1990, rather than the 119,000 they predict. This contradiction is in sharp contrast to the new plan to limit population growth in nine counties around San Francisco Bay just adopted by the executive committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Obviously, genuine limits on population growth will not be set for the Monterey Peninsula until hard figures are available on its carrying capacity—the population that can be contained in the area between Marina and Big Sur without danger to the health and well-being of the residents, and without threat to the unique beauty and environmental amenities which we all consider so precious. Understandably, the Commission was prevented by limitations of both time and money from making a study which would furnish useful estimates of carrying capacity. Until such estimates are available, we caution the Commission to err on the conservative side in setting density figures for development of all areas on this Peninsula.

Norberg dissents:

Rate schedule adopted for use of city-owned scout house

"I felt and still feel that Carmel-by-the-Sea should have some meeting room somewhere for some worthy activity, if and when that activity appeared and was recognized by the city," Acting Mayor Gunnar Norberg told the city council at last Tuesday's regular meeting.

Norberg argued that the city-owned scout house, which is "used two evenings a week by two scout groups," could be used as a meeting place for groups such as the Forest Theater Guild. He had thought, he continued, that the large meeting room in the house could possibly be used "for the purpose of Shakespeare readings by the Forest Theater Guild."

The discussion centered around whether or not to approve a rental schedule for the facilities at the scout house and Norberg explained that the house has been placed "in a tentative fashion" under the wing of the Sunset Center manager, Frank Riley, who brought up the matter before the cultural commission. The cultural commission, Norberg said, decided there should be a rental schedule established for the "more or less dilapidated meeting room."

The Guild can pay, Norberg continued, but it is "engaged in trying to revive and reactivate the tradition of outdoor theatre and if they are to do so, it is desirable they should pay as little or no rent for space no one wanted."

The cultural commission has recommended a morning and afternoon rate of $5 and an evening rate of $10 for the use of the main meeting room for meetings, lectures and social events.

Commissioner Eben Whittlesey told the councilmen that it is the "position of the commission that the scout house be placed under a rate schedule in the same manner as the Sunset Cultural Center and all its accommodations and a rate schedule has been approved by the commission."

As to the matter of the request from the Guild, Whittlesey continued, "it is the position of the commission both as to the Sunset Center in general and to the Boy Scout House that usage should not be free except for municipal functions which are co-sponsored by the city council."

The commission's thinking is, he said, that almost all the agencies and bodies that make use of the Sunset Center and will make use of the scout house are non-profit organizations and poor. "We feel it presents a false picture of the economic situation.

"If we offer free facilities," Whittlesey added, "then we're beclouding the picture. There is a cost to the city. The city is giving something without appearing to do so."

Col. C. Austin De Camp told the council that civilization accomplishes its end in a general way through organization and history shows organizations tend to institutionalize.

"Now we are seeing Carmel get institutionalized," De Camp said and added he was entirely in sympathy with Norberg. Tradition should have an attitude of encouragement towards "organizations or groups whose objective is the preservation of the flavor of Carmel.

"The city should say," De Camp added, "yes, sure you can have it and encourage it. That's my opinion. I don't know if you give a damn, but you've got it."

Riley told the council that the city administration asked him to make a study of needed improvements in the meeting room and that it is currently in the works. He added that no meetings can be held in the house until various city departments inspect it to see if it conforms to safety standards. Riley said it has been approved for scout use because the scouts are "more agile," but other groups have to wait for the reports.

The request for a rate schedule, Riley added, is consistent with what "the city council has approved in the past."

"It seems unusual that a rate schedule for the scout house never came up before—until the Guild decided to read there," commented Philip A. Oberg, Carmel attorney and an officer of the Guild.

Adults, he said, ought to be considered as responsible as the scouts under the supervision of one adult. The Guild, he said, can find one adult just as responsible and the use asked for is not a "great thing—it's really very little to ask."

The organization is a fine one, Councilman Ken Brown said, and it is probably doing "Carmel a lot of good, but every non-profit organization can say the same thing. If we give in to one, we'd have to give in to many." He thought the cultural commission had come up with reasonable rates and would support the commission's proposal.

Agreeing with Brown, Councilman Barney Laiolo said that if the council starts setting precedents, more non-profit organizations will start looking to the city for "something for nothing." He added that the "physical aspects" of the building "do not meet the safety fire regulations of the state."

Councilman Olof Dahlstrand felt that "as it stands now, I would have to go along with" Brown and that to be consistent in basic policies, the city should charge rent.

Norberg asked why the rate was $5 in the morning and afternoons and $10 in the evenings and Riley said that in the mornings, the demand was "not too heavy and would allow the building to be used more."

Should the scout house be a separate entity under city jurisdiction, Norberg asked, instead of being under Sunset Center auspices? Dahlstrand said he did not think it should be separate since there is a staff at Sunset Center which could run the scout house.

Norberg voted against the rate schedule, but it passed with a 3 to 1 vote.

A similar schedule for the Sunset Center was sent, unanimously and with no discussion, to the council's administrative committee.

Audubon Society endorses Proposition 20:

Del Monte Properties defends campaign contribution to defeat Coastal Initiative

The Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society has added its name to the list of local organizations supporting Proposition 20, the coastal protection initiative on the November ballot. Directors of the 475-member group voted to unconditionally endorse the initiative.

Alan Baldridge, president of the Aubudon Society chapter and librarian at Hopkins Marine Station, said: "The Audubon viewpoint is that we see a steady destruction of coastal estuaries, sand dunes and lagoons under the banner of progress. Proposition 20 is a means to take due note of the ecological importance and fragility of these areas. It would provide that environmental considerations be taken into account rather than merely the vagaries of the real estate market."

Noting Audubon's greatest coastal concerns, Baldridge said, "We see the coastal wetlands as being among the most significant areas that are being lost at the present. Of particular concern locally are the Elkhorn Slough area at Moss Landing, the only estuary of real size and extent in the 200 miles of coastline between San Francisco and Morro Bay; the threats of development to the mouths of both the Salinas River and the Carmel River and the destruction of sand dune areas all around the rim of Monterey Bay."

Baldridge also pointed out that over 80 percent of the coastal wetlands in southern California "have already been lost for all time."

Meanwhile, Del Monte Properties Company defended its $15,000 contribution against the initiative, stating that it "endorses the principle of coastline control, but opposes Proposition 20." Its opposition is based on the control methods stipulated in the initiative and the manner in which it is written, calling Proposition 20's provisions "far reaching, vague and potentially damaging."

According to a Del Monte Properties statement:

"(1) Many of the provisions in the Initiative are vague in meaning and will be difficult or impossible to regulate. Clarification of these provisions will require long and costly court action.

"(2). Adoption of the Initiative will be detrimental to many residents and property owners within Del Monte Forest in addition to the Company, and will severely affect other properties in Monterey County.

"(3). The Initiative undermines the authority of local elective government and by the required membership of the commissions vests final approval in the hands of appointive members.

"Proposition 20 stipulates that six regional commissions plus an overall state commission are to be appointed to prepare by December 1, 1975, a California Coastal Zone Conservation Plan for consideration by the Legislature. The description of the proposed planning area is vague and uncertain, but in some instances extends for five or more miles inland.

"During the period of preparation of the Plan, a Coastal Zone Permit Area will be established extending 1,000 yards inland from mean high tide. Within the permit area, any property owner must get a permit from the regional commission to undertake any "development" costing more than $7,500. "Development" as defined covers among other things any construction; additions to structures; demolition; subdivisions, water use and disposal systems.

"Approximately 40 percent of Del Monte Forest lies within the permit area as defined. Besides two developments which the Company has been planning (a new golf course and hotel in the Spanish Bay area and subdivision of the Macomber House property), the permit area of the Forest includes 1,156 subdivided lots. All but six of these lots are owned by others than the Company and 350 are undeveloped.

"Under Proposition 20, the ultimate authority to issue permits for any "development" on these lots rests in the hands of the regional commission. After February 1, 1973, such approval must be secured, but the restrictions imposed are such that it can be expected that up to three years time could be required particularly since public hearings must be held and any person can appeal a permit. This indicates that Proposition 20 will affect both the Company and persons living in Del Monte Forest.,

"Proposition 20 makes no stipulation as to compensation for loss of the use of land by any property owner. Nor does it provide a basis for local taxing authorities to recover loss of tax income due to reductions in property values.

"Beyond the specific area of Del Monte Forest, the Initiative has other implications. It does not provide any additional ability to acquire or improve shoreline areas but simply imposes a new level of decision making. It is a virtual takeover of existing local and regional zoning prerogatives within the permit area. The Initiative makes no distinction between urban and rural areas nor does it recognize any ongoing planning by existing agencies."

Kenneth B. Wood of Carmel Meadows, Chairman of the Alliance to Save Our Coast, a coalition of Monterey County citizens and organizations supporting Proposition 20, responded by stating "The Coastal Protection Initiative has surely separated the buck from the beach. Those individuals and companies who have posed as being conservation minded are now disclosing where their true interest lies."

Wood called the stated concern by Del Monte Properties for the people who own lots in Del Monte Forest and might wish to build upon them "a typical example of special interests distorting their facts in their opposition."

According to the Alliance to Save Our Coast:

"Proposition 20 poses no problem for such construction. The only requirement for obtaining a permit is to demonstrate that any project proposed will not have 'any substantial adverse environmental or ecological effect.'. Obviously building a house on an already zoned lot in Del Monte Forest would not violate this requirement. What would be difficult to demonstrate is that Del Monte's proposed Hotel-Motel complexes on both Asilomar Beach and Spanish Bay would not have any "adverse environmental or ecological effect.'"

Wood added: "Natural beauty has given the Monterey Peninsula its unique quality and Del Monte Properties its economic success.

"I find it shocking then that Del Monte Properties has contributed $15,000 to defeat a coastal protection measure which mainly seeks to reduce exploitation of the beach.

"We invite the people in Del Monte Forest who are interested in Saving our Coast and not in its further crowding and deterioration to help the Alliance's Check for The Coast Fund.

"It's time to stand up and be counted. Once a mouse even roared at an elephant."

On a statewide level, the California Coastal Alliance, sponsors of Proposition 20, challenged the name of their opposition, the Citizens Against the Coastal Initiative, stating that most of the money to fight the initiative is coming from businesses and special interests rather than citizens.

Despite the sizable campaign war chest amassed by opponents of Proposition 20, the California Coastal Alliance claimed that public opinion polls show overwhelming statewide support for the initiative by 68.5 percent of the voters.

In sothern California, the poll revealed that 64.7 percent supported Proposition 20, 14.6 percent were opposed, and 20.7 percent were undecided. Support in northern California was even more overwhelming, with 77.4 percent in favor, 11.5 percent opposed and 11.1 percent undecided.

Coastal Alliance 'Beach Walk' planned for next Saturday

Supporters of Proposition 20, the Coastal Protection Initiative, will gather Saturday, Oct. 21 for a group beach walk from Monterey's Wharf No. 2 toward Sand City. Time is set for 10:30 a.m. with all ages invited to attend. It is stressed that those unable to continue for the whole walk, approximately one mile, may go only as far as they wish.

Charles B. Kramer, Monterey County Planning Commissioner, will lead the coastal stroll as will State Senator Donald Grunsky. Assemblyman Bob Wood has also made plans to attend.

Members of the following local groups endorsing Proposition 20 will join the walkers: Sierra Club, League of Women Voters, American Association of University Women, Carmel Citizens Committee, Monterey Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Monterey Bay Federation of Teachers. Still others are the Carmel Area Coalition, the Pacific Grove Federation of Teachers, Audubon Society and Friends of The Sea Otter.

Proposition 20, if passed in the coming November election, would create the framework for a long range plan for coastal development. Six regional commissions divided 50-50 between local governments and public representatives would be established for a coordinated effort.

They would have three years in which to prepare a coastal protection plan which would then be submitted to the State Legislature. In the meantime, developers would be required to obtain permits if construction is within 1000 yards from the ocean.

Kenneth P. Wood of Carmel is heading the local Coastal Alliance effort. "The October 21 Beach Walk is one way we all have to demonstrate our concern for the threatened California coast," says Wood. "Of the entire stretch of 1,072 miles, only 253 are now open to the public.

"It is of the utmost importance that we rouse ourselves to support an orderly plan for the future. We hope that we will have hundreds of people of all ages going along on the Oct. 21 walk."

—VOTE NOTE—
If you must vote by absentee on November 7, contact your County Clerk or Voter Registrar between October 9 and 31.

Here are some of the reasons:

FINEST MEATS All of our beef cuts are government graded, USDA CHOICE. Close trimmed to remove excess fat and bone so the meat cooks better and gives you more to eat for your money. Must please you or your money back!

FRESH PRODUCE Sparkling fresh fruits and vegetables chosen by expert Safeway buyers right in the growing areas. They rush the produce to our stores in peak condition for you to enjoy.

NATIONAL BRANDS A big selection of best known brands. You'll find your favorites at money-saving prices.

SAFEWAY BRANDS For additional savings, we offer an outstanding variety of quality brands bearing our own labels. All are unconditionally guaranteed.

OPEN DATING Safeway brands of perishable foods carry easy-to-read dates on the package. Buy on or before these dates and you are assured of several additional days of fresh, top quality food.

DISCOUNT PRICES All through the store you'll find low discount prices which can mean real savings in your food budget.

SUPER SAVERS These are temporarily reduced prices — even lower than our discount prices. Added ways to save!

GUARANTEE The exceptional thing about our guarantee is that there are no exceptions. Everything you buy at Safeway must please you or we'll refund your money!

MPC students can now transfer to UC with 'C' average

Beginning with the fall 1973 quarter, students transferring from Monterey Peninsula College to the University of California may be admitted to advanced standing after establishing a 2.0 grade point average in their community college work.

In a new experimental program being developed at the University of California, students who were eligible for admission to the university at the time of their graduation from high school may be admitted to advanced standing after establishing at least a 2.0 ("C" letter grade) average at a college or university.

Students who were not eligible at the time they graduated from high school may be admitted after they have completed 56 semester hours of transferable course work with at least a 2.0 average.

Students who were ineligible for admission as a freshman only because they had not studied some of the required subjects in high school have two options by which they may become eligible. They may choose to take college level courses in the subjects they lacked and become eligible upon completion of those courses with a 2.0 or better grade, or they may be admitted to the University of California upon completion of 56 semester hours of transferable course work with at least a "C" grade average.

According to MPC's Dean of Student Personnel Jack Bessire, the change in requirements will make transfering easier for MPC students planning to attend the University of California.

Conventions this week

The Monterey Peninsula is making it big this week convention-wise. Twenty-five meetings bring a total of 2,879 delegates to the area with 915 of these in Carmel for 15 of the gatherings.

Yesterday (Wednesday) Crown Zellerbach concluded a four-day meeting at the Quail Lodge attended by 25 paper people. Forty scientists from the Stanford Research Institute have been at the Lodge since Sunday. Tuesday through Sunday 100 from the Institute of Life Insurance are conferring there and tomorrow 50 Contra Costa Contractors will assemble at Quail for three days.

This Sunday, 115 delegates will pack into the Highlands Inn when the National Flexible Packaging Co. begins a four-day gathering. Meanwhile, the Inn is hosting a meeting involving 35 from Essex International which continues through Sunday. Miller-Morton Co. will leave the Highlands tomorrow after a four-day stay for 20 representatives.

A meeting of 25 people from Xerox has been at the Highlands Inn since Monday and will leave tomorrow. Twenty-five attended an Allis-Chalmers meeting there last Monday through Wednesday.

Sunday through Wednesday, 75 Associated Bearing and Power Transmission Distributors were seen around the Carmel Holiday Inn. Tuesday, 125 organizers of the North-South Shrine Golf Tournament drove into the Holiday Inn where they will be until Saturday. Also at the Inn are 75 representatives of Quinn-Martin Productions.

Tomorrow 120 members of a group called the Elfun Club will converge on the La Playa until Sunday. Today through Friday, 50 Consultining Engineers of California are there.

If you saw someone on Ocean Avenue wearing a name badge between Sunday and Wednesday, he might have been one of the 35 staying at the Pine Inn with McDonald Tag and Label Co.

Sunday through Wednesday also brought 700 Northern California Car Dealers to the Del Monte Hyatt House which may explain the early week haziness (smog?). Tomorrow and Saturday 400 Unity Ministers will be at Asilomar.

A 'somewhat unusual' parade permit

A group that is "madly in love with our dogs" applied for a "somewhat unusual parade permit" at last Tuesday's council meeting. Kay Maccagno, Carmel resident and representative of the Mission Trail Borzoi Club, told council members that the club (comprised of owners of Russian wolfhounds) wanted to hold a "walk" down the streets of Carmel.

It would not really be a parade, she said, because club members and their dogs will not be marching on the street, but on the sidewalks.

"The dogs," Mrs. Maccagno explained, "are either show or obedience trained and will be on leashes. We will take measures to keep things under control." The club has provided, she added, for an eight-year-old boy "complete with pooper scooper" to make sure things are "kept under control."

Approximately 20 people and "an equal number of dogs" will march, she said, from I. Magnin's to the Pine Inn on Ocean Avenue and "a few side streets."

City Attorney William Burleigh told Mrs. Maccagno that since they will be walking on the sidewalks, no permit will be needed. Councilman Barney Laiolo commented that "the only one who'll stop traffic will be the eight-year-old."

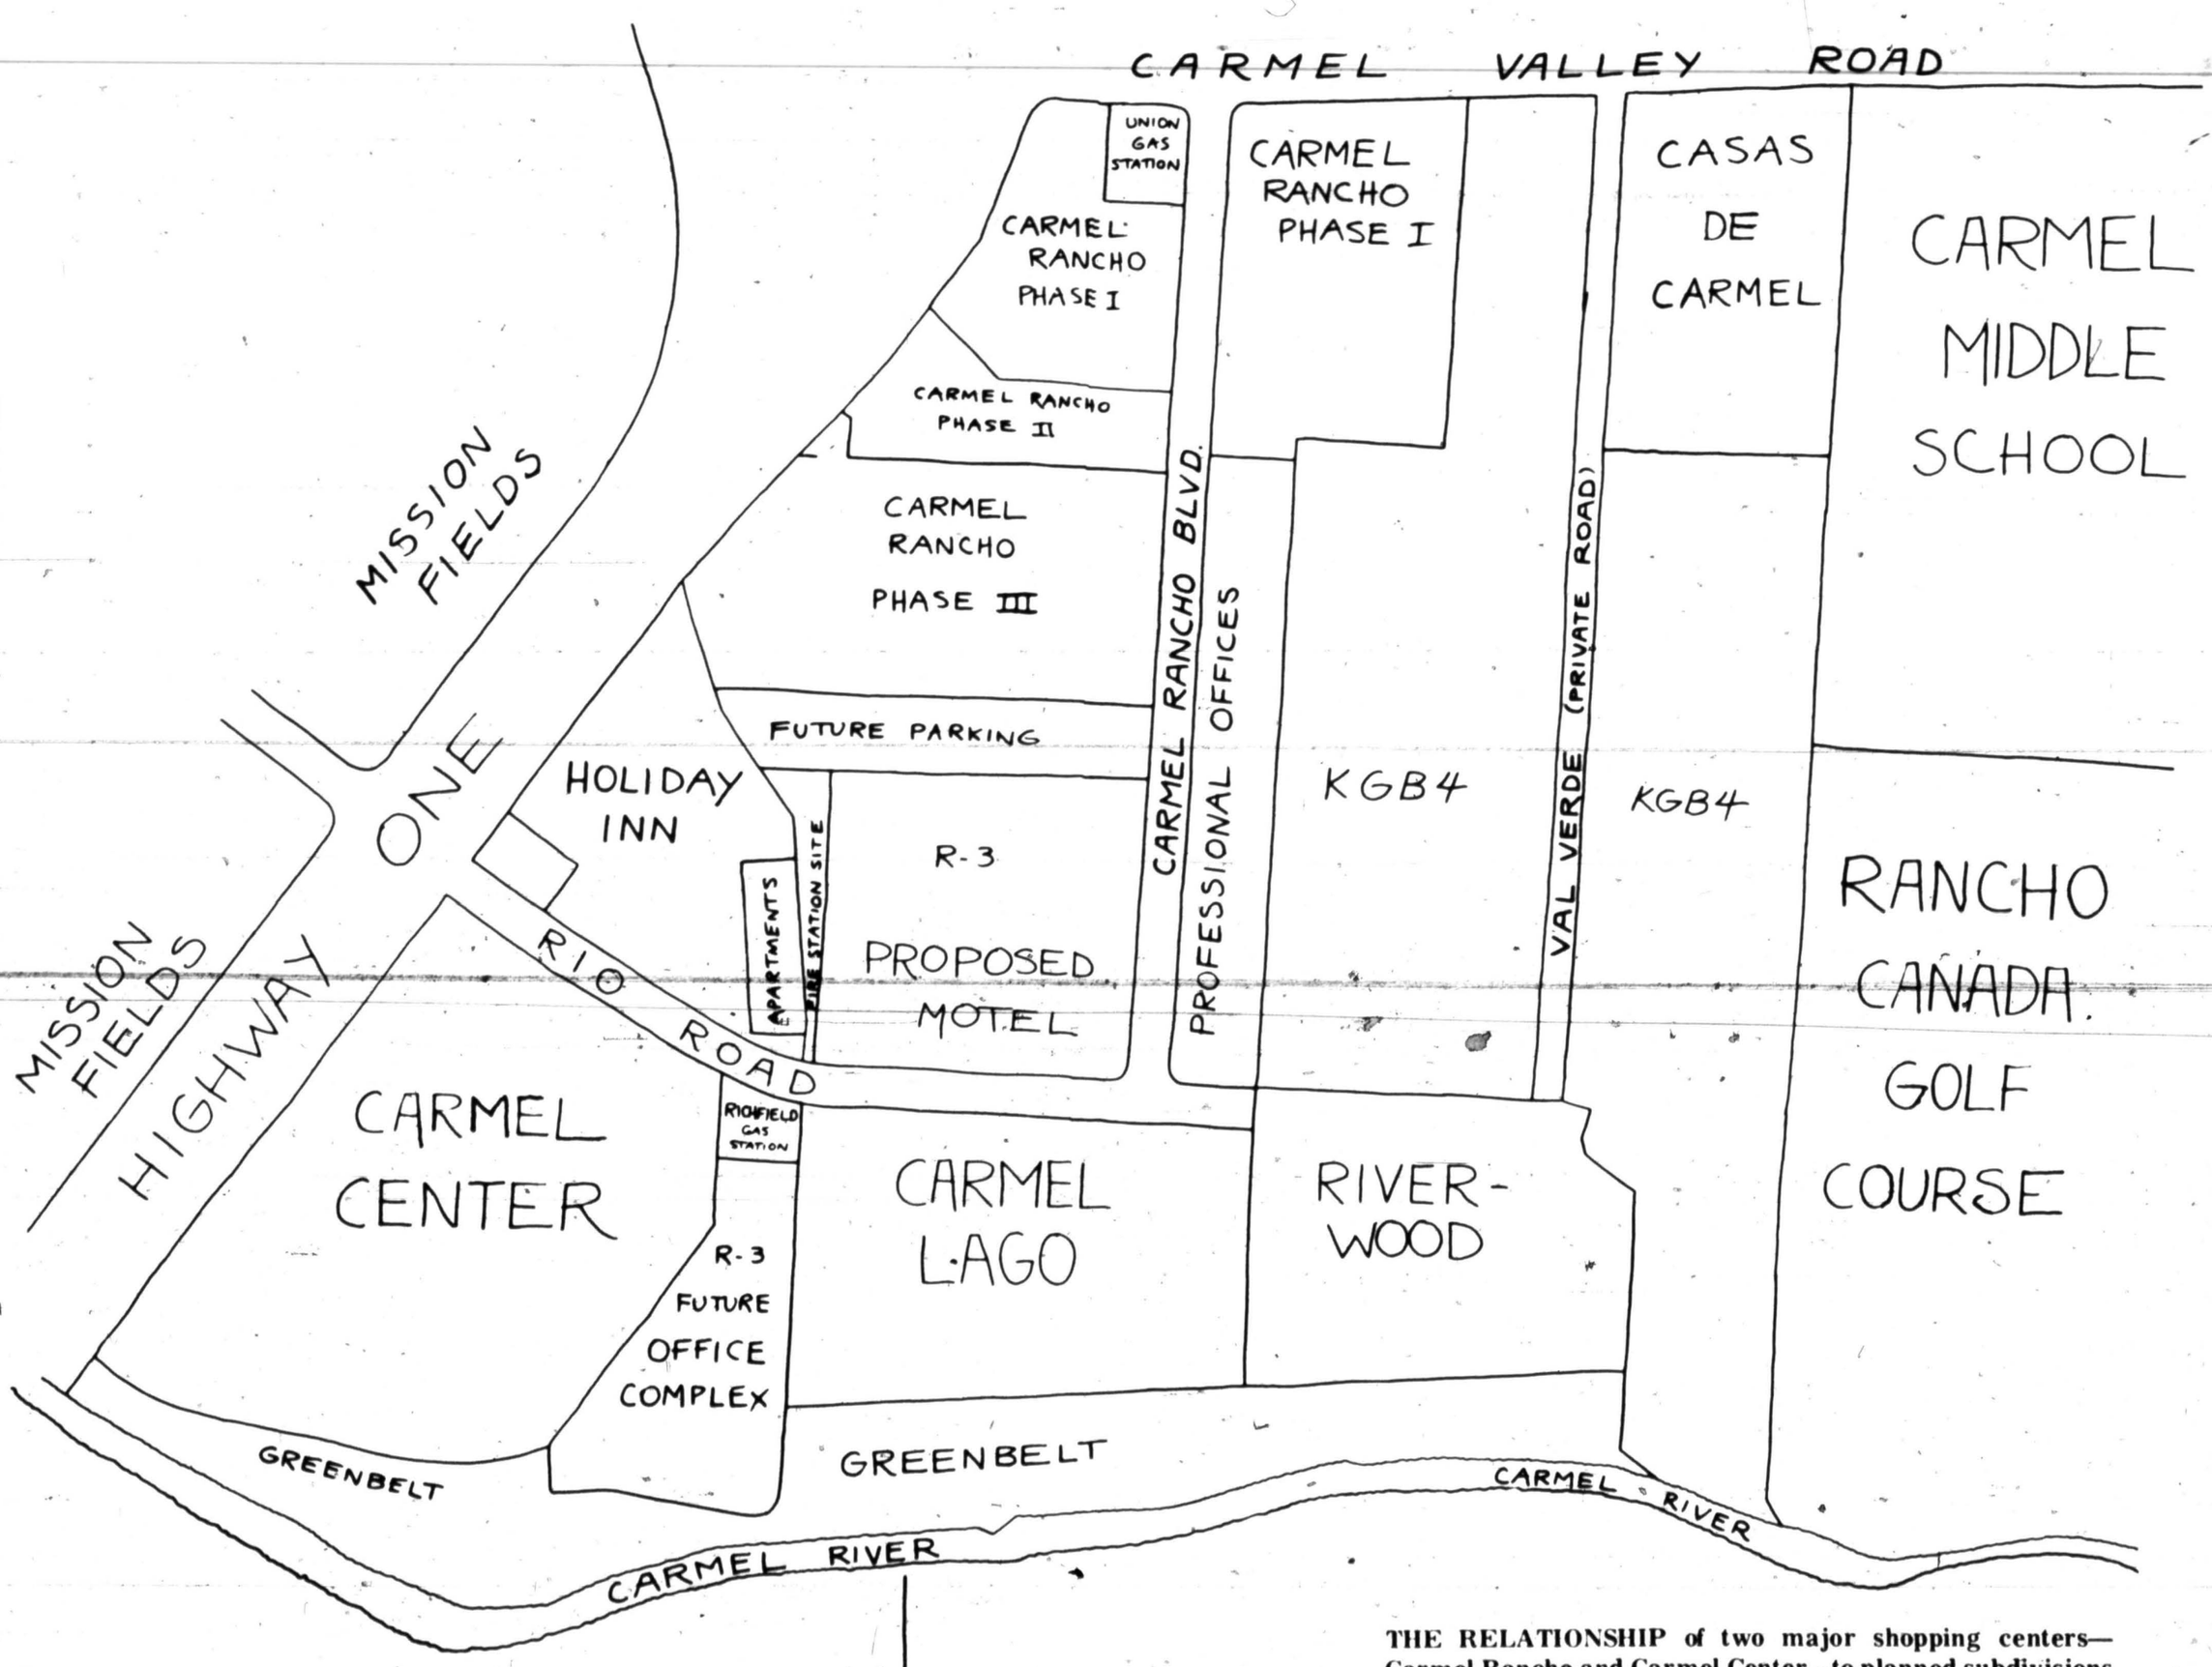
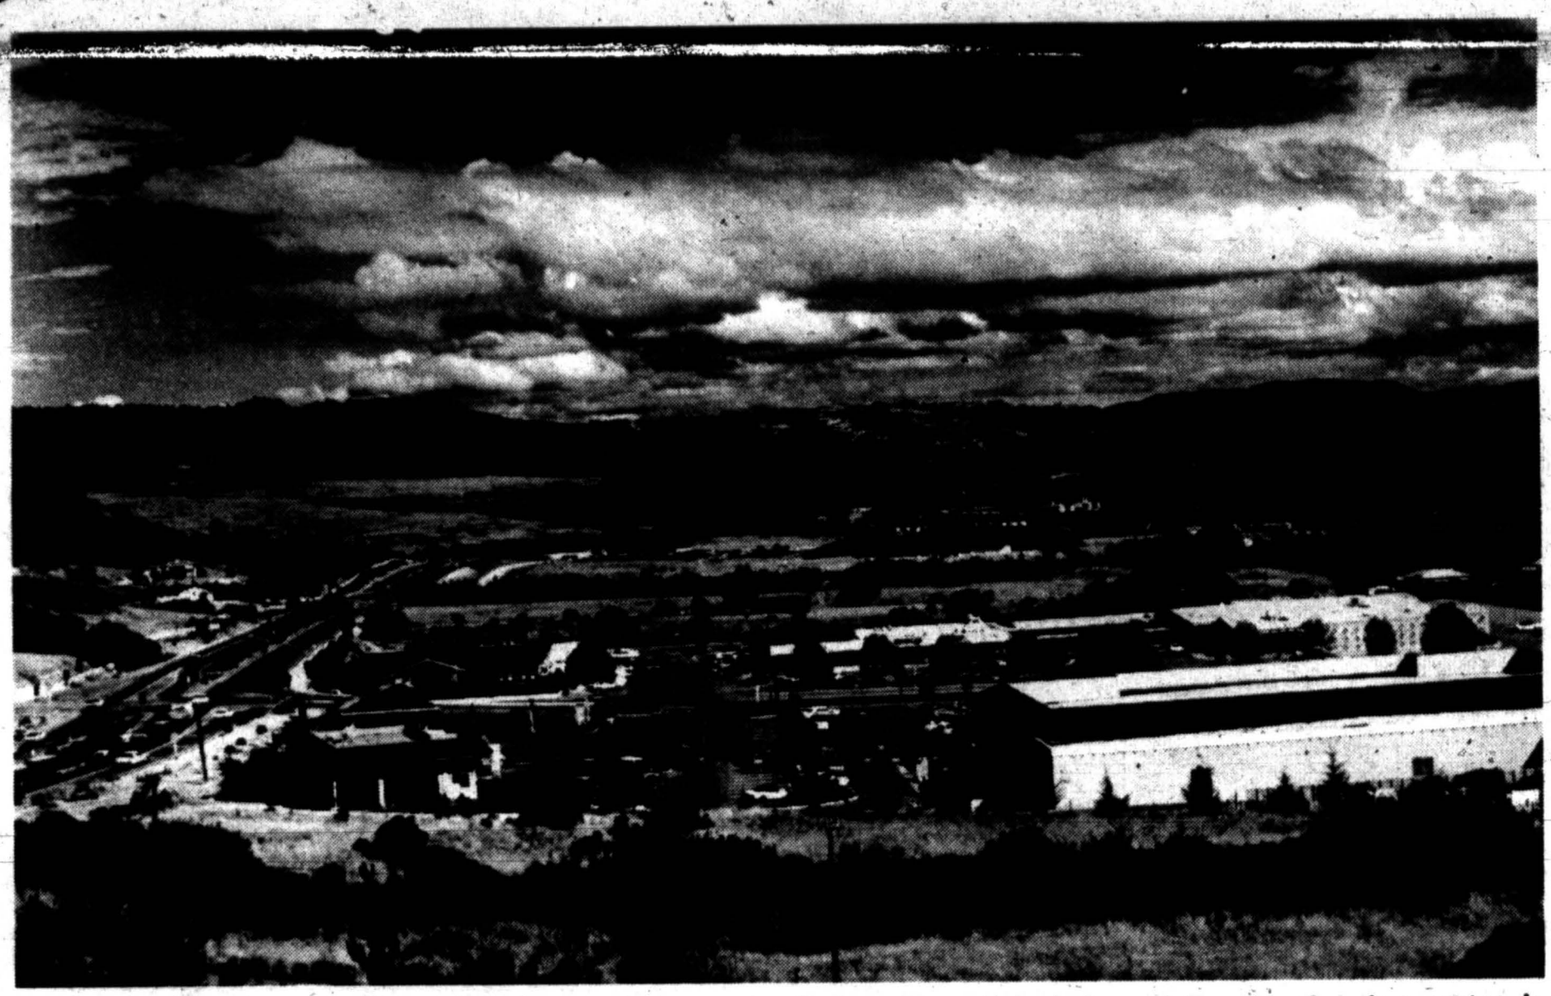
NO PLACE could have been more tranquil, more suited to farming and ranching, than the mouth of the Carmel Valley thirty years ago. The Hatton ranch and dairy dominated the scene in this pre-World War II photograph. Print from the collection of Pat Hathaway

Commercial building boom at mouth of Valley

Last week's Pine Cone carried an article with aerial photograph describing the rapid commercial development taking place at the mouth of Carmel Valley. In the following pages we take a closer look at what is planned, who owns the property and what the community can expect.



THE RELATIONSHIP of two major shopping centers—Carmel Rancho and Carmel Center—to planned subdivisions in the mouth of Carmel Valley is outlined on this map. If the Riverwood subdivision is approved, Rio Road will be extended in a line across the northern edge of the property.



TODAY IT REQUIRES traffic signals, left turn lanes and divider strips to channel the steady flow of cars into and out of the burgeoning commercial area at the entrance to Carmel Valley. The original Carmel Rancho shopping center is shown in this picture. Phase II and the yet-to-come Phase III are out of sight on the right. (photo by George T.C. Smith)

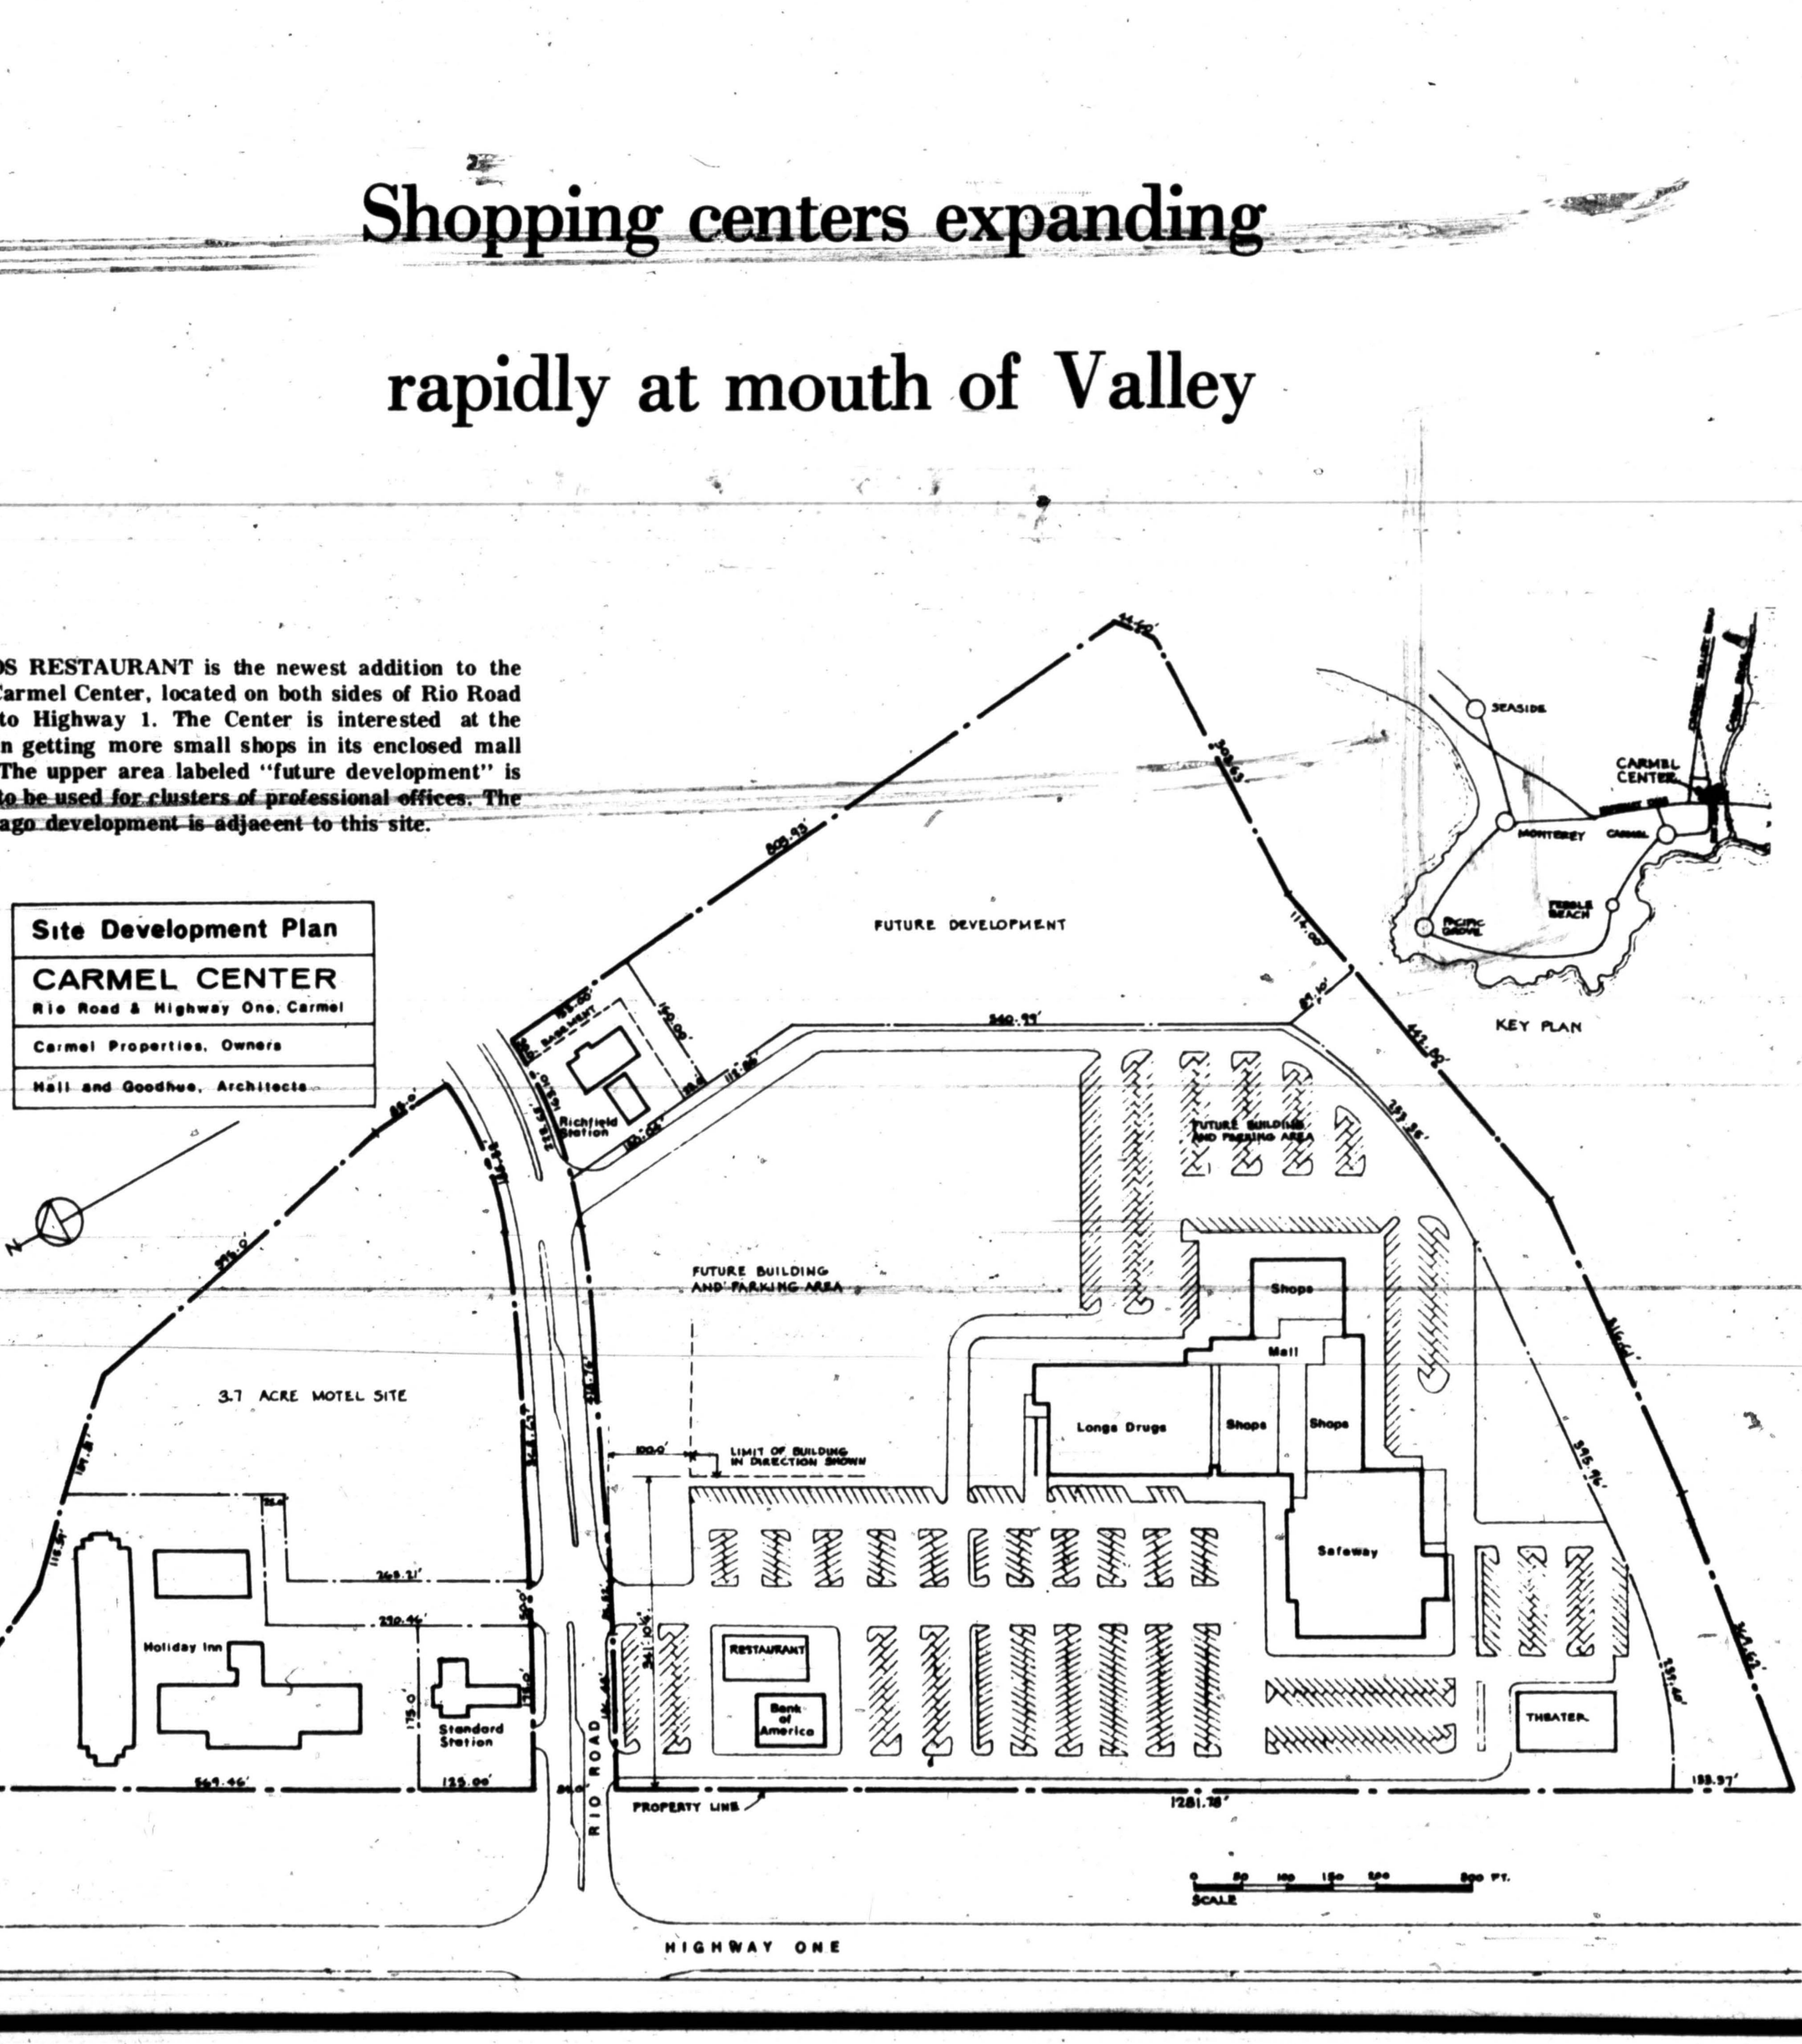
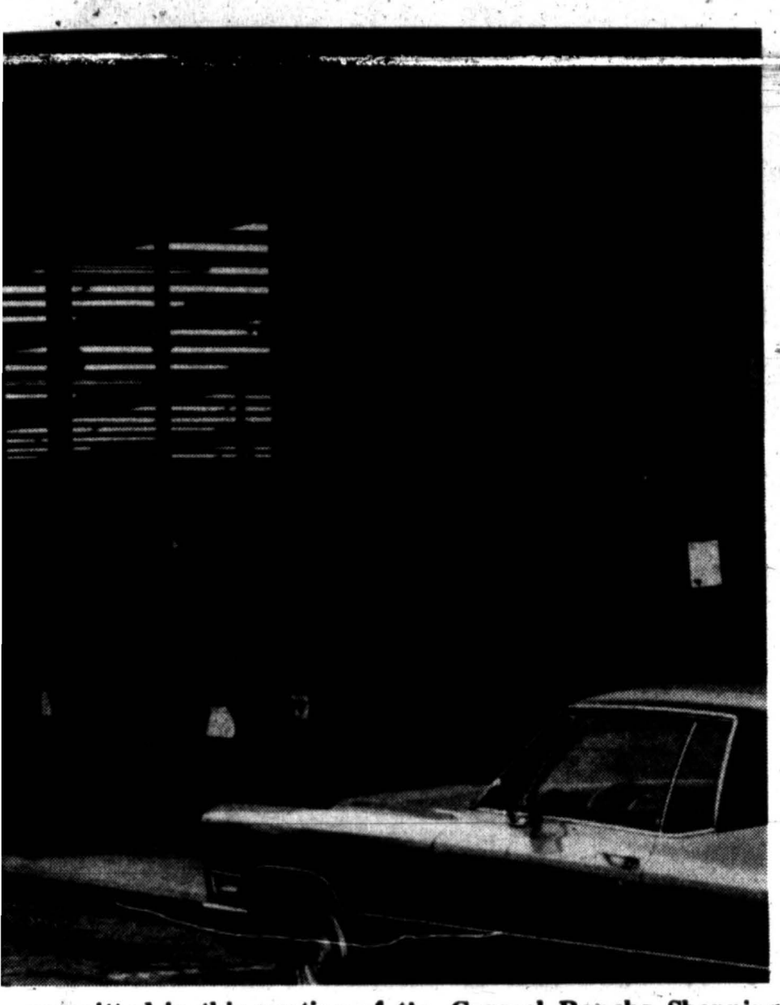
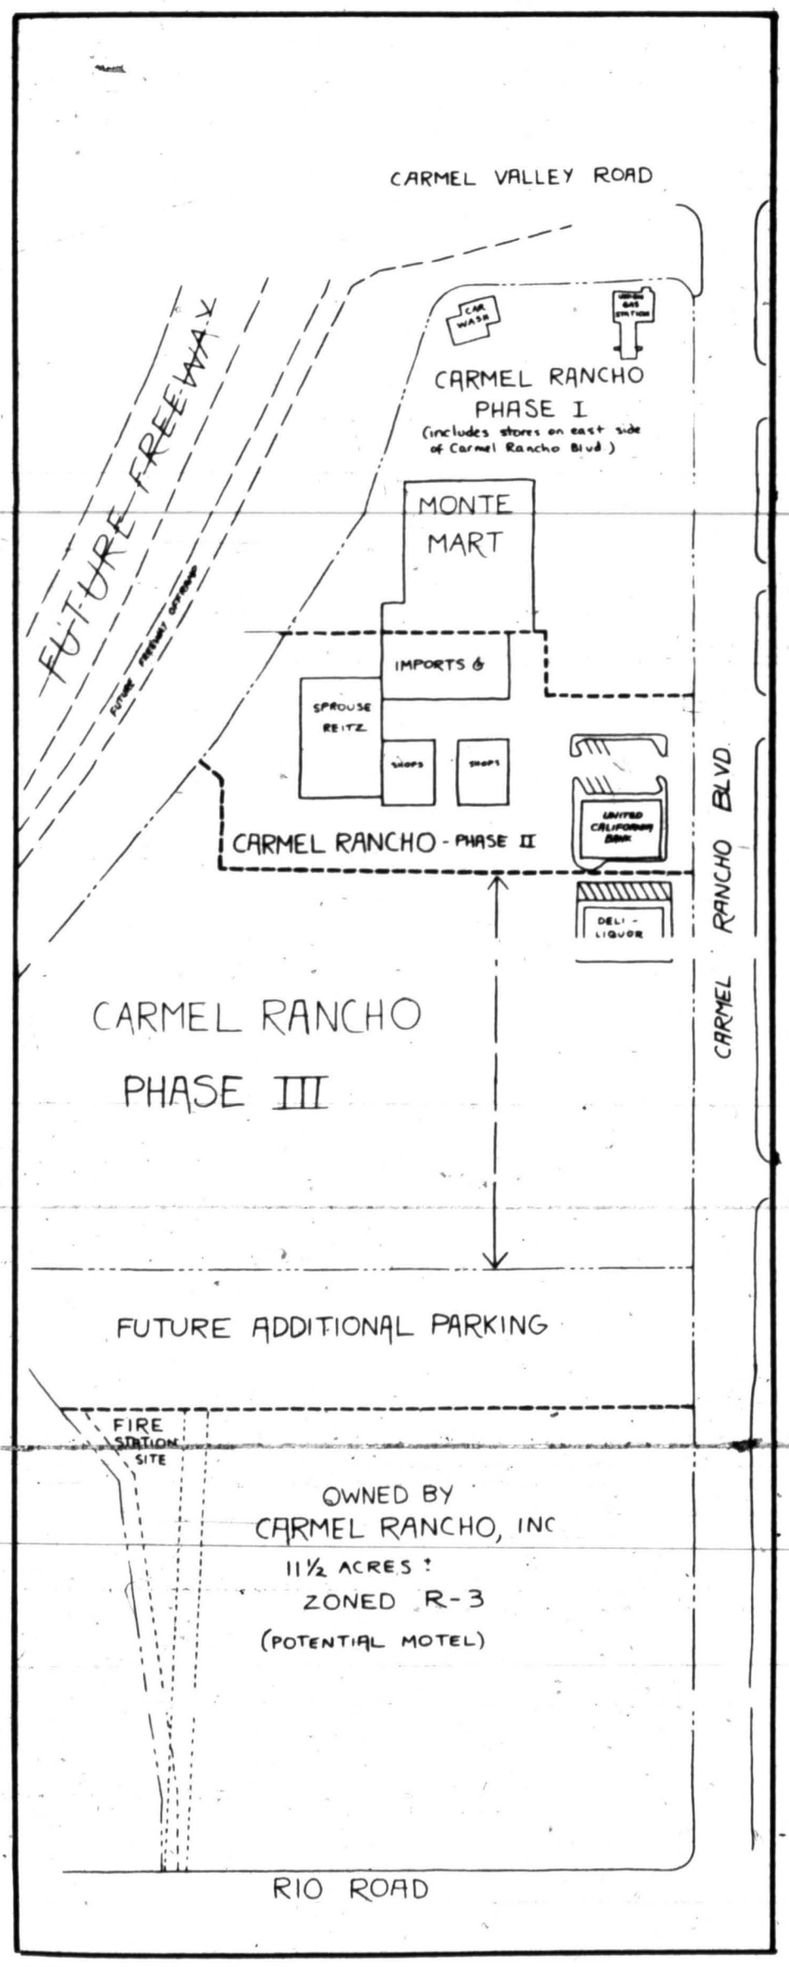
A SAMBOS RESTAURANT is the newest addition to the growing Carmel Center, located on both sides of Rio Road adjacent to Highway 1. The Center is interested at the moment in getting more small shops in its enclosed mall building. The upper area labeled "future development" is expected to be used for clusters of professional offices. The Carmel Lago development is adjacent to this site.





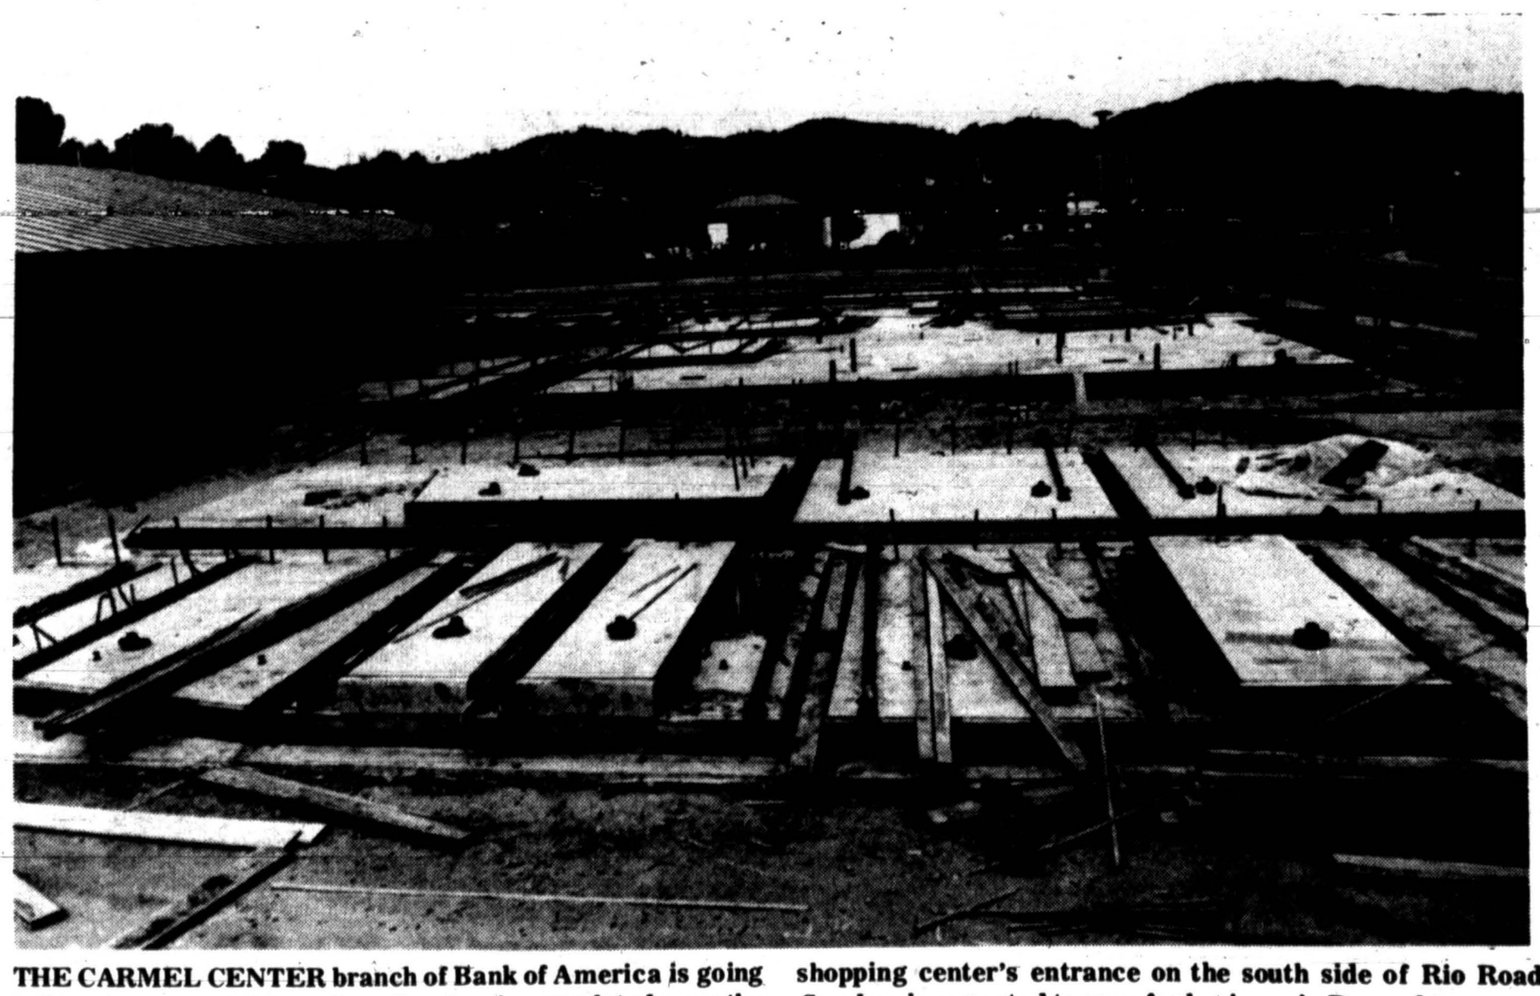
permitted in this portion of the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center will not be allowed in the new Phase III. Instead, all signs will be carved redwood and kept small.

ONE OF THE NICE "small touches" at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center is the shingled roof shielding regulation mailboxes.

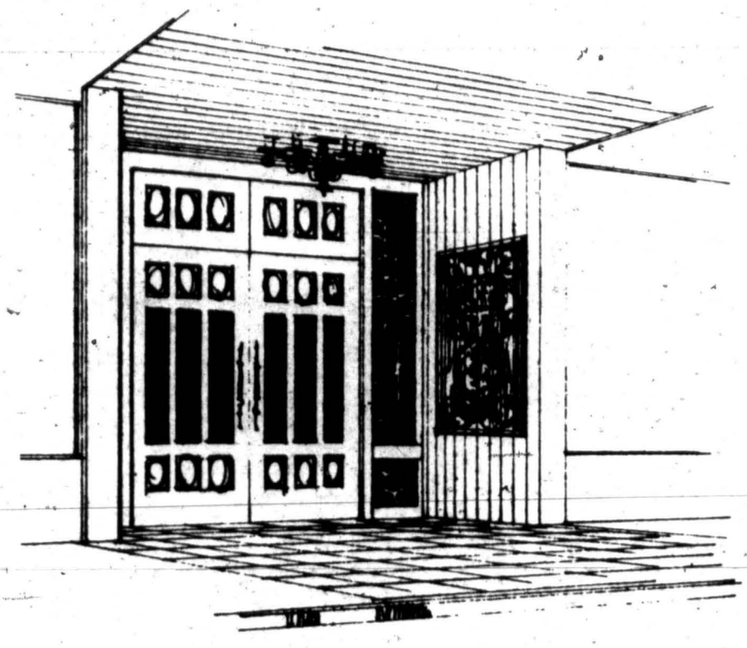


THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN the existing Carmel Rancho Phase I and Phase II and the proposed Phase III is more than technical. Howard Bucquet, who bought the Phase III property earlier this year, plans a condominium-type shopping center with stringent design controls, with emphasis on pleasing exteriors, planter boxes and extensive landscaping and "natural" materials. The corner property, below Phase III, is zoned for multiple residential development, and may one day be a motel.

SOME LUCKY ATTORNEYS will have a view of the Fish ranch when this office complex being built by William K. Stewart is completed. Or at least they'll have a view until something goes in next door.



THE CARMEL CENTER branch of Bank of America is going to have a near neighbor when Sambos is completed near the shopping center's entrance on the south side of Rio Road. Sambos is expected to open for business in December.



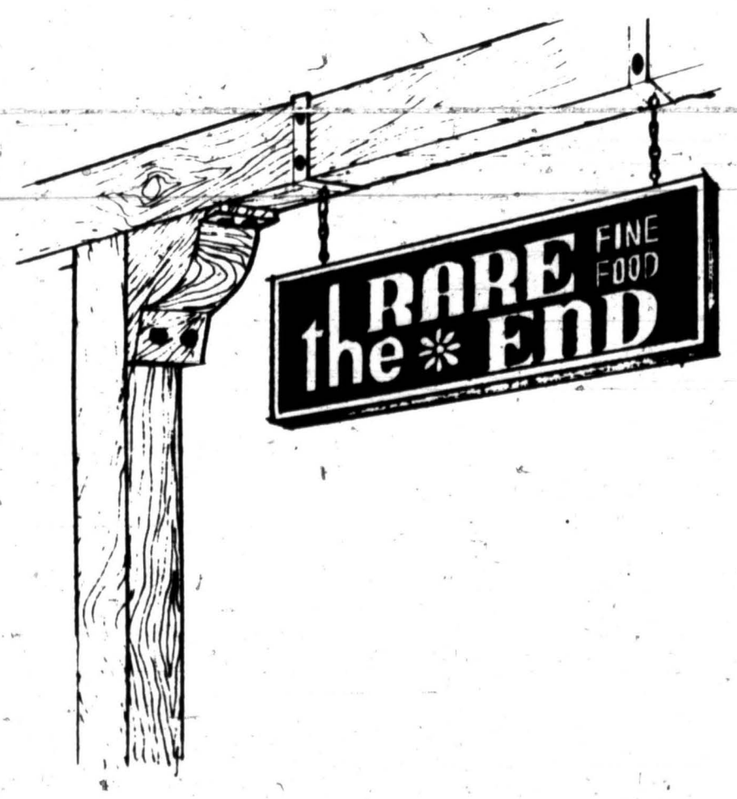
CARVED WOOD DOORS will be encouraged for shops in Carmel Rancho Phase III according to the general guidelines for development proposed by developer Howard Bucquet. No aluminum-framed plate glass doors will be allowed.

MAKE WAY FOR PHASE III. Bulldozers leave their imprint as clearing starts on the newest portion of Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, which will have the most stringent design control of any of the commercial areas.

Plans mapped for Carmel Rancho Phase III

THE OVERALL VIEW of Carmel Rancho Phase III allows for variety within limits.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES at the northeast intersection of Carmel Rancho Blvd. and Rio Road. This land is part of the five acres zoned for professional offices.



DOUBLE-FACED carved wood or metal signs will be the rule, rather than the exception, in the new Carmel Rancho Phase III. Plastic and neon are taboo.

County counsel says:

New construction in Monterey County subject to environmental review – but a different kind

Monterey County Counsel William Stoffers said Tuesday that the recent State Supreme Court ruling requiring environmental impact studies for major land developments affects Monterey County in a different way than Mono County, where the suit originated.

Because Monterey County has a "Conservation Element" in its general plan, Stoffers said, the ruling simply requires that the Board of Supervisors decide whether or not a project is in accord with this statement.

And this is only necessary, he said, for projects which are considered to have a "significant effect" on the environment.

Stoffers said the court defined "significant" as meaning "non-trivial," and he said he would interpret this to mean it would apply to subdivisions and some use permits, but not to the great majority of septic tank permits for individual homes.

He said it will be up to the county department issuing the permit in question – such as the health department in case of a septic tank permit – to decide whether or not the project is "significant" from an environmental standpoint. If it is, then the supervisors will have to study it further.

In the case of Mono County, which does not have a conservation element in its general plan, the court ruled that a formal environmental impact study had to be prepared before a major development on Mammouth Mountain could proceed.

As far as the Odello project is concerned, an environmental impact study will be required because it will involve federal and state financing as a redevelopment area.

Stoffers said he did not know when such a study should be made, but that he does not think it will be necessary for the supervisors to prepare an environmental impact report prior to the public hearing on the proposal which is tentatively planned for Nov. 21.

Stoffers said he would check into the redevelopment law further in the next few weeks in order to better advise the supervisors about the timing of their study.

CONSERVATION ELEMENT

The natural landscape of Monterey County has an economic value as well as a scenic and aesthetic value, and these will increase in the years to come. Natural resources are irreplaceable and should be preserved and protected wherever possible.

The conservation of the natural landscape has continued to make the county a pleasant place in which to live as well as being a prime attraction for the tourists who travel great distances to visit its scenic and historic setting. These areas of outstanding scenic quality should be given special consideration, and in this way the aesthetic values will become economic assets.

The conservation of agricultural lands in the Salinas Valley is important to the economy of the county. Although many of the urban areas in the Salinas Valley are located on agricultural lands, it is possible to have orderly expansion of urban areas with relatively small losses of agricultural lands.

The conservation of the ocean resources off the coast of Monterey County is of equal importance to any of the other natural assets of the county, if not of greater importance. The ocean is and has been a prime attraction for tourists, it is and has been of great economic value to the county, it serves as a climatic control, and it is the greatest open space available anywhere.

OBJECTIVE

The conservation of all natural irreplaceable resources in Monterey County and its environs for practical purposes as well as for recreational uses and the preservation of its natural beauty.

PRINCIPLES AND STANDARDS:

1. Conservation programs should be developed at all governmental levels.

2. Open space programs should be expanded to protect the scenic vistas throughout the county.

3, The spectacular scenery of the Monterey coastal area should be conserved.

4. The Monterey County shoreline should be protected wherever possible for the enjoyment of the public.

5. All sources of water pollution entering Monterey Bay from Monterey County or other outside areas should be curtailed at their source.

6. Careful control of all structures along the ocean front and offshore should be maintained.

7. The areas of outstanding historic, scenic and cultural heritage should be conserved and protected.

8. Land should be integrated with the road to form scenic corridors along scenic highways.

9. Outdoor advertising should be restricted.

10. Open type land uses such as agricultural, grazing, or watershed areas should be encouraged.

11. Flood plains and watershed areas should be protected and wherever feasible used for recreational purposes.

12. Reservoir or water recreation reservoirs should be placed in the county to provide for water conservation, flood control and multi-purpose recreation uses.

13. Foothill streams and canyons are desirable water storage areas and should ultimately be planned for this use.

14. The importance of clean air to the people of the county, to agriculture, and to all other uses should be considered a valuable asset and should be protected at all times.

15. High topographic area necessary for electronic sites should be conserved for that purpose.

Party Plans:

The most delicious CBA picnic ever!

By PHYLLIS JERVEY

CARMEL'S merchants made merry on Thursday, Sept. 28 with a country-style beach party that got off with a bang at 6 p.m. and continued with equal enthusiasm until four hours later. All this action happened on Stewart's Beach at the end of Stewart Way just west of Carmel Way. It took an entire day for Gus Velarde and his crew to prepare the long pit over which his super fodder simmered.

Bales of straw surrounded camp fires around which Carmel lovers sat neck to neck. The aroma of spareribs, kettle corn, country-taste beans permeated the merry-making crowd.

Never prosaic, always with adventure, Gus and his beautiful willowy Diane know how. Members of Carmel Business Association (an organization of business and professional men and women who cooperate in promoting civic, social and economic welfare in our community) need sometimes to gather, breathe in salt air and unashamedly let go their appetites.

Gus and Diane created come-hitherness beach fare that calls for returns. Experts at catering to the elite fastidious or just normal everyday barbeque aficionados, the Velardes have that sure touch.

Gus told us (exclusively for The Pine Cone's Party Plans) just what His & Her Bar-B-Q Buffet served forth:

C.B.A.B.B.Q.

Garden Tossed Salad; Bouquet of Fresh and Marinated Relishes; Country Style Ribs; Kettle Corn; Fiesta Taste Beans; Fresh Oven Baked Breads; Spiced Fruits in Brandy Sauce; Campfire Coffee. Wines. Ole. Musica con mucho gusto. Romance in Rhythm.

Les Crudites, as the French say, consist of raw cauliflowerettes, quickly pickled in wine vinegar, then drained; radish roses; cherry tomatoes and wax pepper strips; kumquats, colossal black California olives; carrot and green onion spears; pickled cucumbers. All kept icy cold in insulated containers. The V.'s equipment is fabulous . . . ever ready for any emergency.

The Garden Tossed Salad: Freshly rinsed (over and over) young emerald Carmel Valley spinach leaves, watercress sprigs and romaine hearts, finger broken, chilled, kept in plastic bags until serving, then tossed (minus sand) with the lightest of olive oil and fresh lemon juice, salt, cracked pepper. None of this bottled invention.

Lean Spareribs and Velarde Bar-B-Que Sauce: This special piece de resistance really satisfies our inner urge. The very leanest ribs, cut into suitable finger-licken pieces are first baked at home, any fat discarded. They are then piled into insulated thermos type boxes.

The succulent spareribs are covered with this incomparable salsa: For six sturdy bayside breezy famished appeites, have 6 lbs. lean pork spareribs. For that tiny amount, saute in heavy skillet 1 lb. cubed thick ranch bacon. When crisp, remove with slatted spoon and put into brown paper bag. In remaining bacon fat, saute 3 large onions and 1 garlic clove, chopped medium fine; drain off fat; add 1 large can tomato sauce, 1 cup or more molasses, pinch of celery salt; cinnamon, allspice; touch of wine vinegar and enough dark brown sugar to color a dark shade. Add bacon.

Simmer this delicioso creation slowly for 3 hours or until it "gets syrupy, sticky good" to quote slender-as-an-elf Gus whose dark eyes sparkle with just the thought of those bay ribs!

To return to these, when destination is reached, keep in container, remove 25 min. before serving starts, grill over charcoal, basting constantly with small mops, turning but not burning.

Imagine the amount for let's say a battalion. On toasted French bread chunks. "My goodness you must have to provide a truck load of paper napkins" was Mrs. Party Plans awed remark. "Oh we just let them use the ocean" Gus smiled. However we know that he has every item planned with aforethought. Sturdy containers, paper plates, huge napkins all help to keep the beach fires burning. Clean up squads are voluntary and willing.

Kettle Corn has a smacking good taste. Straight from our Valley this just picked sweet tender corn is simply plunged in salted, fresh water, on the boil. Only a few at a time. You butter your own. (At home we add sugar and canned milk to tenderize the kernels, but Gus almost hand picks his own. They have a marvelously cooperative group of co-workers. Girls for outings, men for formal occasions.

Fiesta Taste Beans: Open air does something to usually unenthusiastic disinterested partakers. So on with a different approach.

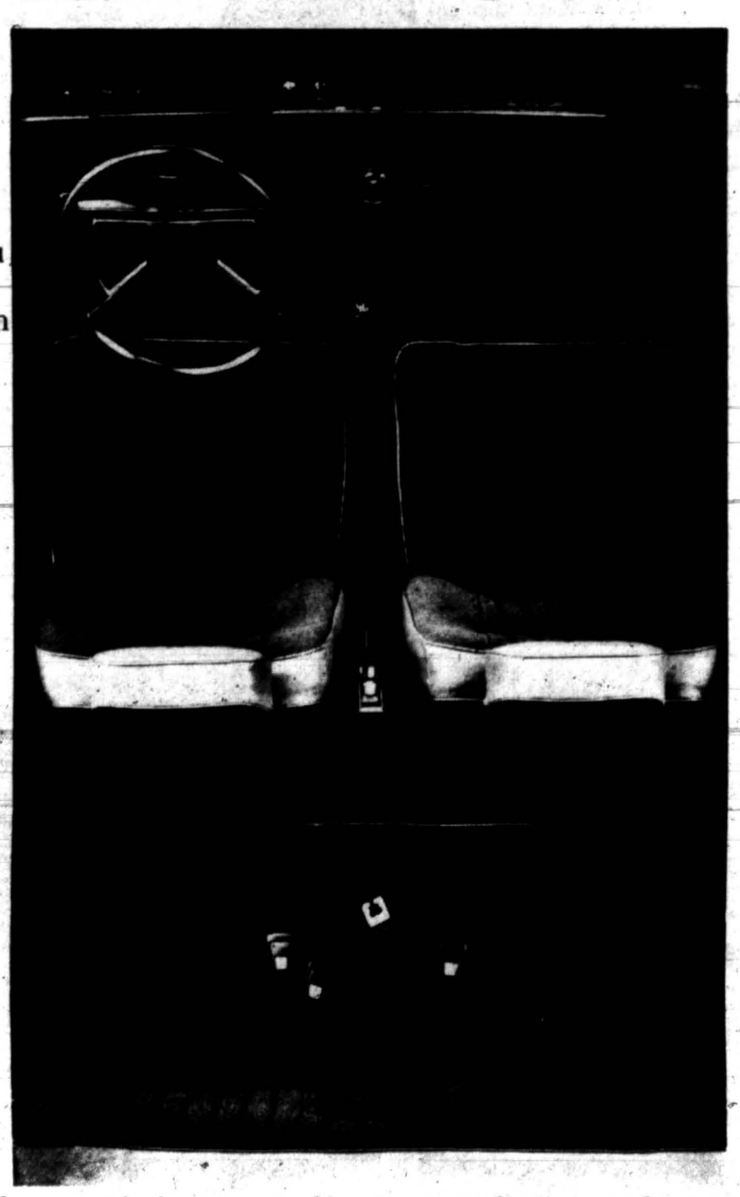
Although still baked in huge New England crocks, Gus maybe uses the instant method. He was busy answering his constantly ringing phone, so we substitute our own version: Can-opener come forth. Do your magic with a large can of Boston baked beans. Combine in old fashioned crockery bean pot (this is imperative for authenticity!) Brown sugar, dry mustard, sauteed salt pork minus fat, also put a peeled whole onion in center of pot. Bake in slow oven only an hour until bubbly. Dry sherry and instant coffee, combined to a smooth paste, are added 15 min. before serving.

Now, Gus, this is with thanks to you for your contributions.

Spiked Fruits in Brandy Sauce are really de luxe. Even on a picnic the V.'s use only the best. Why ruin lovely fresh fruit with a cheap brandy? Use top quality only. Make a plain sugar and water syrup into which poach the whole unpeeled pears, peaches, plums, apricots until softened but still firm. Remove. In syrup add grated fresh ginger, cloves, cinnamon stick, freshly grated nutmeg. Cook down gently without scorching. Meanwhile, peel fruit, remove seeds and other particles. Slice, marinate in spicy syrup with brandy keeping chilled until serving.

Even on a beach? Merv Sutton, C.B.A. President, Harriet Meyer, our self-effacing Ex-Sectry, the board and all those who have worked so hard to make this annual event the best that Carmel Business Association ever had, deserve our thanks.

INSIDE EVERY VOLVO COMES THIS BIG COMFORTABLE CAR.



A Volvo doesn't look big from the outside. But when you get inside, it grows on you.

Sit in the front seats. You have more room to stretch your legs than you do in a Cadillac.

When you plop down in the back seat, you'll experience the strange sensation of not having your knees scrunched up against the front seat. Volvo has more rear seat legroom than a Buick Electra.

Poke around the trunk. You'll discover it's bigger than a Lincoln Continental's.

On long trips, you'll also be eternally grateful for Volvo's fully-reclining bucket seats. They have an adjustable lumbar support to make the seat backs firmer or softer.

One thing that's not soft about a Volvo is the construction. Our body is so strong you can stack seven Volvos on top of each other without squashing the one on the bottom. It's also protected by six coats of primer and paint. And two different undercoatings.

We don't want your enjoyment of our inside to be spoiled by the disintegration of our outside.

Symphony opens 27th season this weekend

GLENN DICTEROW, concert violinist, featured with the Monterey County Symphony under the direction of Haymo Taeuber, in performances Oct. 15, 16 and 17 in Monterey, Carmel and Salinas. Carmel concert time is 8:00.

Haymo Taeuber and the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra begin the 27th season on Oct. 15, 16 and 17 with concerts in Monterey, Carmel and Salinas.

Carmel concert-goers should make special note of the new concert time of 8 p.m. Previously the performances have started at 8:30, but many listeners expressed a desire for the earlier hour.

Featured with the Symphony in the Violin Concerto in D Major by Brahms is young Glenn Dicterow, top American prize-winner of Moscow's prestigious Tchaikovsky Competition in 1970.

He will be playing on a 1712 Stradivarius violin and his playing has been characterized as "astonishingly beautiful, with excellent technique, virtuoso brilliance and uncommon musicality." Dicterow has performed with major symphonies throughout the United States.

Orchestral works, Overture to Oberon by von Weber, and the Tchaikovsky Symphony No. 4 complete the program.

See the advertisement in today's issue for ticket information.

Human potential seminar begins tonight at MPC

Improving interpersonal relationships and developing personal strengths will be the focus of a Human Potential Seminar scheduled for Monterey Peninsula College in October and November.

The seminar will be led by Dr. Joseph Smith, psychiatrist and director of Monterey County Mental Health Services. The seminar will begin tonight, Oct. 12. Four sessions will be held from 7-10 p.m. in H-1 at MPC.

The group will be limited to 30 persons. Emphasis will be placed on discovering personal strengths, understanding achievement patterns and planning to reach personal goals.

Registration will be carried out through MPC Community Services, 375-9821, ext. 335. A $6 fee will be charged.

North-South polo match Sunday at Collins Field

Santa Barbara's six-goal polo team will represent the South in the annual North-South Polo Match set for 2:30 p.m. Sunday at Collins Field, Pebble Beach.

At stake is the Social Spectator Trophy which the North won last year after previous years of southern possession.

Playing for Santa Barbara will be: Vic Graber, rated with 1 goal; Hershel Bonham, 1 goal; Harry Hicks, 1 goal and Ken Fracine, 3 goals.

The North team will be named next week.

The Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula, which is sponsoring the event, is a non-profit community resources organization which offers supplementary academic programs for gifted children.

Tickets are $1.50 each and can be purchased the day of the match at Collins Field, or in advance by calling: 624-2403. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

NORTH-SOUTH polo will be played Sunday at Collins Field, Pebble Beach. Shown here was last year's match, which the North won. They will defend their title for the Social Spectator Trophy. The Lyceum of Monterey will benefit from the sale of $1.50

Letter

Dear Editor:

Thank you for our free copy of The Pine Cone. Since we buy it almost every week we've decided to accept your offer. It will be pleasant to have it in our mail box every Thursday. I'm enclosing the necessary cheque for six dollars.

Please accept our thanks for the immense improvement and expansion of The Pine Cone.

May I say that I am furious with you about the heading of the critique of The King and I. "Flawed but charming"—Damning with faint praise. We attended the matinee on Sunday (there wasn't a vacant seat) and were carried out of our present existence. Every one was good. Just delightful. The orchestra did its best to spoil the performance, but even it could not eliminate the warm magic.

When the cast assembled for the finale, the tears rolled down my cheeks.

Sincerely,
M. KATHLEEN MORGAN

Israel Trio to open Chamber Music season

The Monterey Peninsula Chamber Music Society will open its 1972-73 season with a concert by The Israeli Trio at Sunset Auditorium in Carmel on Friday, Oct. 20 at 8:30 p.m.

The Trio, formed only one year ago, has already won great acclaim throughout its own country. It is composed of three brilliant Israeli artists, each an accomplished musician with an impressive career of his own.

Pnina Salzman, pianist, was a child prodigy at 12 and has continued to enchant audiences in every part of the world.

Yona Ettlinger, first clarinetist of the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra, delights his audience with the beautiful tone of his instrument, and is well known as a performer of chamber music.

The Trio offers a varied repertoire to its audiences, including classic compositions as well as modern works.

The program in Carmel will consist of Beethoven's Trio for Clarinet, Cello and Piano in B flat major, op. 11; Debussy's Sonata for Cello and Piano in D minor; Poulenc's Sonata for Clarinet and Piano; and Brahms' Trio for Clarinet, Cello and Piano in A minor, op. 114.

A few memberships in the Society are still available. For information, call 624-2993. Additional tickets—for balcony seats only—will be available at the door on the night of the concert.

Lecture on x-ray astronomy today at MPC

The relatively new field of X-ray astronomy will be the subject of a free public lecture at Monterey Peninsula College today (Thursday).

Dr. Bruce Margon, an authority in the specialty of X-ray astronomy, will present an illustrated lecture on this new technique of learning about the universe. His presentation will be in Lecture Forum 102 at 4 p.m.

X-ray astronomy is the newest field of astrophysical research made possible by the space age. Since celestial X-rays do not penetrate the earth's atmosphere, it is necessary to place detectors on rockets, balloons and satellites to obtain these observations.

One discovery which has come to light since the field began about 10 years ago is the existence of several strong sources of X-ray emission within our galaxy. These sources are not seen be telescopes since they emit very little light.

The exact nature of these sources is still a mystery, but Dr. Margon will discuss theories which have been formulated. The program is jointly sponsored by the Astronomical Society of the Pacific and MPC Community Services.

THE MUSIC CORNER

By IRVING W. GREENBERG

WITH ITS SUNDAY concert, the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra under its permanent conductor, Haymo Taeuber, will start its new 1972-73 season. Scheduled for performance at this first concert are works by Weber, Brahms and Tchaikovsky.

The Overture to "Oberon" by Carl Maria von Weber, which will introduce the program, was first performed at Covent Garden in London on April 12, 1826. The libretto by James Robinson Plance, was based on an old French romance.

The overture opens with a horn call, answered by muted strings. A pastoral scene is created by descending figures in flutes and clarinets, and maintained by a serene melody for cellos. Loud chords lead to the main section, in which the first theme is turbulent.

After a return of the opening horn call, there appears the second main theme, a beautiful song for solo clarinet, repeated by the strings. After this comes an excerpt from the famous aria, "Ocean, Thou Mighty Monster." Earlier material returns for elaboration, and the overture ends with a final statement of "Ocean, Thou Mighty Monster."

Violin Concerto in D major, Op. 77 by Johannes Brahms was introduced in Leipzig on January 1, 1879 with Joseph Joachim as soloist, and with the composer conducting. It is in three movements: Allegro non troppo; Adagio; and Allegro giocoso, ma non troppo vivace.

There are few works of Brahms in which his many-sided qualities as a composer are so fully represented as in this violin concerto. It begins with the wonderfully promising introduction by the orchestra in which, literally before we realize it, most of the thematic ideas have been exposed.

For what follows the opening D major passage in the strings is the oboe sounding the second theme (C major) and then the abrupt chords of which so much is made subsequently. It is only in retrospect that this seemingly uninterrupted line of thought is recognizable, really, as a smooth jointure of several independent ideas. When the violin enters with its impassioned outburst, as though impatient for having had to wait its turn so long, it is with a four-octave thrust that announces, in so many notes, that this is a different instrument than the one for which Beethoven wrote his eloquent but technically restricted work.

The artifices of Paganini may seem a long way from the esthetic of Brahms, but even without the celebrated Variations on a Theme by Paganini for piano, we would know from this concerto that Brahms was keenly aware of the Italian's contribution to the resources of the instrument.

How Brahms utilizes these resources to exploit the disparity of means between soloist and ensemble, then to reconcile their differences in an ennobling statement of the opening theme after the cadenza, is part of the give and take which makes this movement the special kind of experience that it is.

What the Adagio movement might have been like without the composer's rigorous sense of self-criticism one hesitates to think, for he tried several combinations (including a scherzo before the finale) that left him dissatisfied.

In the end, he settled upon what now seems the only inevitable procedure: a prolongation of the "post-cadenza" mood of the first movement, in which the violin moves through a self-powered orbit around the theme pronounced by the oboe, expanding, expounding, even exhorting the orchestra to follow.

If thought and emotion dominate the first two movements, a spirit of play is paramount in the third. It is a kind of holiday for strings in which they all participate as equals, with the game of follow-the-leader initiated by the soloist but ended by the ensemble.

Formally, it is a rondo, rather terse for much of its length but evolving a concluding section (coda) in which the material passes in review, newly transformed. Through it all courses the Hungarian dash and fire, the sense of abandon and release which Brahms learned at the source.

Symphony No. 4 in F minor, Op. 36 by Tchaikovsky is the first of Tchaikovsky's symphonies to hold a secure place in the orchestral repertory. Its premiere took place in Moscow on March 4, 1878, with Nikolai Rubinstein conducting. It is in four movements: Andante sostenuto; Moderato con anima in movimento di valse; Andantino in modo di canzona; Pizzicato ostinato-Allegro, and Allegro con fuoco.

To his patroness and "beloved friend," Mme. von Meck, the composer set forth a program for this music.

"The introduction is the kernel, the chief thought of the whole symphony." This is Destiny. Destiny is represented by a fanfare for horns and bassoons in octaves, soon joined by trombones and woodwinds.

In the main body of this movement, the first principal theme is a syncopated melody for first violins and cellos. After it has been discussed, the clarinet contributes a lyrical second theme.

The slow movement opens with a poignant melody for oboe against pizzicato strings. Another touching melody is later given by the woodwinds, violins and cellos. Midway in the movement there is a change of pace and mood with a lively subject for clarinets and bassoons.

To Tchaikovsky this music represented "another phase of sadness. One regrets the past and there is no desire to begin life anew. There were joyful minutes. There were also sad moments and irrevocable losses."

The Scherzo makes effective use of plucked strings. The main section consists of a pizzicato melody in the strings. In the trio, a lively tune exclusively for woodwinds displaces the pizzicato music. "Here," said the composer, "are capricious arabesques, elusive images which pass in the imagination when one has tasted a little wine and experienced the first phase of intoxication."

An impetuous theme for strings and woodwinds opens the finale, followed by a quotation in woodwinds of the famous Russian folk melody, "In the Fields There Stands a Birch Tree." A new subject consists of a majestic statement for full orchestra.

To Tchaikovsky, this music meant the following: "If you find no pleasure in yourself, look about you. Go to the people. This is a picture of a folk holiday. Rejoice in the happiness of others, and you will be able to live."

VERDI'S AIDA as mounted at the San Francisco Opera, is a spectacle of fine design, charming decor and intelligent presentation. Teresa Kubiak, the Polish soprano who sang the title role, was somewhat insecure in her first act solo aria ("Retornar vincito"), but she gradually gained balance and intensity, as well as vocal line, until in her solo aria in the third act ("O Patria mia"), she was a model of dramatic and vocal force.

The role of Amneris, assumed by Ruza Baldani, a most glamorous mezzo from Yugoslavia, was outstanding in her articulation, her vocal mobility and her visual projection. Especially was this true in the last act, in the Judgment and Tomb Scenes.

The role of Radames, taken by Carlo Cossutta, the Italian tenor, was fine with a sheen of beautiful interpretation, and with vocalism of a high order in all of his register. This was especially noticeable, since his singing of the first solo aria ("Celesta Aida") was lacking in passionate utterance.

A wonderful and most impressive performance, both in dramatic stance and in vocal force was given by Bruce Yarnall, the American singer, in the difficult role of the Ethiopian king, Amonasro.

Nino Sanzogno, who led the orchestra, conducted with rare restraint, fine balance, and an impressive sense of involvement. Also very charming was the dancing of the Corps de Ballet, the Afro-American Dancers, and the solo dancers involved.

Although, when first presented this season at the Opera, this production may have appeared somewhat ragged and uneven, whatever its faults, they seem to have been corrected basically, until this exciting and impressive performance has resulted.

Sunset views:

Fall season in full swing

By FRANK H. RILEY, Director
Community and Cultural Activities

THIS PAST WEEK has brought us back full swing into the fall season. With events and classes scheduled for every day—with concerts, lectures and similar large-scale theatre events on about 50 percent of the days—and with Esperanto and the various working studios all functioning—and, finally, with Helen Morgenrath beginning a brand new group of classes in modern dance on Thursdays, we find our attendance figures reaching for new highs.

Day and night operations combine to make Sunset Center a busy and, we hope, a rewarding part of the community. If you are passing by the office, stop in and pick up an October schedule. I'm sure you will discover one or two opportunities that you will not want to miss.

Some two or three weeks ago, we told you that Miss Amy Bingham had presented the Center with a sound system that would make possible background music, amplified voices, or other sound functions in the Marjorie Evans Gallery as well as in Rooms 3 and 4 where many meetings, lectures, receptions and similar functions take place.

The various components are now here and installation is proceeding rapidly. Within a few days all will be operational. Our most enthusiastic appreciation to Miss Bingham—the addition to Sunset Center facilities is truly splendid and will afford considerable convenience as well as the obvious pleasure.

ON SATURDAY, from 3 to 5 p.m., the Alliance on Aging has arranged a public forum of "Hearing and Vision,"—although designed for those over 40, there is no restriction on others who are interested in resolving problems in either of these areas attending. The information is the latest and most accurate available and opportunity is given to ask questions. Admission is free. The meeting is scheduled for the Sunset Center Theatre.

Monday, the 16th, is the date for the first concert of the season of the Monterey County Symphony under Haymo Taeuber. Although the Sunset Center concert hall is, as usual, sold out, there sometimes are a few tickets available. Contact Mrs. Violet Beahan at 624-4125. You may be one of the lucky ones!

The next scheduled event in the Theatre is the program sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Chamber Music Society on Friday, the 20th at 8:30 p.m. Chamber music played by a world-renowned trio is featured. Call the Society for ticket information.

THIS BRINGS US up to a three-day weekend—one of several a thoughtful Congress has arranged for us. This one celebrating Veterans' Day will find the Center closed Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Oct. 21-22-23. Hope you get some time off, too. Enjoy it!

LUCILLE BRANSON IS BACK IN THE VALLEY . . . in charge of the kitchen and dining room at The Carmel Valley Inn. The dining room is serving breakfast, lunch and dinner every day except Monday. They are also equipped to handle private parties, wedding receptions and the like . . . just call Lucille. Carmel Valley Inn Cabana Club Members are urged to call now for reservations for their Halloween party set for Saturday, October 28.

"STEAMBOAT", THE COUNTRY FOLK GROUP AT THE HATCH COVER has changed its name to "Charlie Potatoes" . . . digthat one! They're on every Thursday in the Hatch Cover lounge. (That's the night of "good old days prices" in the lounge). "Cannery Roll" really packed them in last Saturday. Lounge lineup on other nights is Stan Carey on Tuesday, Friends on Wednesday, and Gail on Friday.

THE CARRIAGE HOUSE OPENED TUESDAY and what a charming place it is. A very comfortable atmosphere and great food. Specialty of the house is Tournedos of Beef, smothered with mushrooms and onions, in Burgundy sauce, topped with Parmesan. They also feature a special each night . . . Tuesday, for example, it's roasted pork loin with applesauce. Friday it is half roasted chicken with sage dressing. You'll want to be one of the first to sample their delicious fare.

NO FRIDAY NIGHT BUFFET AT RANCHO CANADA this week due to a golf group committment. So it's a good week to try their great "Drunch" . . . (cocktail and lunch). Time, too, to make reservations for holiday parties. Carl Miller reports the dates are filling up fast.

ANOTHER NEW GOURMET RESTAURANT FOR CARMEL VALLEY . . . Maxim, in the location of the former White Oaks in the Village. They open on Tuesday and will serve luncheon daily except Mondays. Dinner service will start in early November. Continental cuisine. More about this new restaurant next week.

IT WAS A FULL HOUSE AT KING'S CROSS STATION in Pacific Grove last Friday and Saturday nights for the easy listening music and songs of Ron Blair. His ballads are warm and the music provides an ideal background for cocktails and conversation. There is musical entertainment every night at this popular Peninsula spot. Lunch, too, is a great treat at King's Cross Station with sandwich treats like Danish ham and cheese, Canadian bacon, roast beef and, of course, the ever popular Stationburger.

MEXICAN BEER, SERVED AT PLAZA LINDA, includes Carta Blanca, Bohemia, and Dos XX (the latter is the beer written up by Herb Caen as one of the best he has ever tasted). For non-imbibers Plaza Linda has, among others, Mexican chocolate . . . try it, it's delicious. If you haven't had the Guacamole Dip at this popular eating place, you'll find it one of the very best. Guacamoles aren't all the same and Plaza Linda's is way up there.

New MPC film series begins tomorrow

A look at man and his world will be provided in a free afternoon film series at Monterey Peninsula College during October and November.

Tomorrow (Friday), four films dealing with ecological problems facing the earth will be shown at 3 p.m. in the MPC Music Hall. The films are "All the Difference," "Air is for Breathing," "The River Must Live" and "Population Ecology."

All films in the series will be shown at the same time in the Music Hall.

A look at Britain will be the theme of the program offered on Oct. 20. "Pagentry of Britain" and three other films, "Sporting Britain," "Welcome Inn" and "Cotswold Journey," will be shown.

"The Golden Age of Comedy" will be featured on Oct. 27. Academy Award-winning producer Robert Youngson spent seven years searching for the best examples of comedy material before including them in this film. Many famous comedy stars, from Will Rogers to Mack Sennet, are included in the film.

On. Nov. 3, "Man in Space" will be the topic of the film series with films produced by NASA of the Apollo 14 mission to Frau Mauro. The following week, on Nov. 10, five award-winning films of Holland by Dutch filmmakers will be shown. Included are scenes of the former Zuidersee, Amsterdam, Rembrandt paintings and Dutch driftnet fishing in the North Sea.

The final program will be on Nov. 17 with the film biographies of three masters of music, Bach, Beethoven and Vivaldi. The movie series is sponsored by MPC Community Services.

Carmel Center 'Oktoberfest'

Stores in the Carmel Center are holding an Oktoberfest celebration from 11 a.m. through 3 p.m. Saturday with a hay wagon pulled by a 2000 pound Clydesdale to give children hay rides and a pumpkin-carving contest.

According to Mellon Hunton of Carmel, the carvers must be supervised by an adult and bring their own work tools. The pumpkins will be donated.

There will be two carving contests—open to children between the ages of 10 and 16 with a grand prize to be given for the most original and handsome pumpkin face, the neatest one and a special prize to the least-littering carver.

Judges will be art teachers from a Carmel elementary school.

Entertaining the children and parents at the Center will be a shy scarecrow with real hay stuffing. The Center is located on Rio Road and Highway 1.

Hidden Valley's children's theatre to present 'Legend of Sleepy Hollow'

The Magic Carpet, Hidden Valley's Theatre for Children, presents The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, the "Halloween premiere" on Oct. 29 at 2:30 p.m. sharp at the White Oaks Theatre, Carmel Valley Road at Ford Road.

The Legend of Sleepy Hollow by Washington Irving, will highlight the first show this season. The legend concerns the escapades of the Headless Horseman and how he terrifies the local inhabitants of Sleepy Hollow with midnight chases in search of his long lost head.

Ichabod Crane comes to Sleepy Hollow as Schoolmaster. Crane has a voracious appetite for the tasty food served by the Dutch housewives and soon earns their love and respect as a man of learning, talent and tremendous appetite. The men of the small Hudson Bay community soon come to despite Ichabod for his attentions to the ladies and their food.

Katrina Van Tassel, a plump little partridge, is the most eligible miss in Sleepy Hollow. She is not only beautiful, but also heir to the sumptuous Van Tassel farm. Ichabod Crane, being a man of taste for both women and food, quickly singles out Katrina as his favorite.

The Schoolmaster vies for her attentions with Brom Bones, the "good-natured hero of the country round." A deadly feud grows between Brom and Ichabod, the outcome of which you will see Oct. 29.

Ichabod Crane will be played by Jack Whittaker, a newcomer to the Magic Carpet. His love, Katrina Van Tassel, will be presented by Wynn White, who is known for her chatacterizations of Cinderella and the Bull Dog in last year's How the Camel Got His Hump. John Bristol, last year's Androcles and the Emperor, will play the boisterous Brom Bones.

Several other tales will be presented. Talk, a story from the Ashinti Tribe of New Guinea, featuring a talking yam, should surprise and delight parents and kids alike. The Pueblo Indian tale called The Fox—and the Turkey, which centers around cow sinews, will be staged along with Old Galley Mander—an old American tale—and The Finest Liar in the World from Germany.

The Halloween premiere has some other surprises for children of all ages.

Take a Sunday drive with your children and enjoy the fall weather and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow. Admission: Kids - 75c; Adults - $1.25. For more information, call 624-6911.

'Hot Wheels Derby' at shopping center starts today

The Del Monte Kiwanis Club announces a new kind of racing for youngsters: the first annual Monterey Bay Area Hot Wheels Derby. The derby is a three-day event starting today (Thursday) and will be held on the mall at Del Monte Shopping Center in Monterey.

Kids from age 5-15 are invited to race their favorite Hot Wheels cars in open competition. The Derby champ will receive a special Hot Wheels Derby Trophy and a big "O" Sizzlers race set, with a trophy and Hot Wheels merchandise to the runner-up.

More than 100 prizes will be awarded during the three day competition. Each child who enters will receive a special Derby Driver Certificate signed by famous race drivers, Tom "The Mongoose" McEwen and Don "The Snake" Prudhomme.

The Derby features the longest continuous Hot Wheels track in the world, over 100 feet, with the hot cars launched from an eight-foot tower. The kids will have a chance to race their Hot Wheels at incredible speeds against some of the fastest cars in the area.

Thursday and Friday, the competition racing takes place between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. and Saturday from 11 to 4 p.m.

City to get bigger trash containers

Trash containers that are too small and prone to overflowing prompted the city council to appropriate $1,000 from the hostelry tax fund toward the construction of larger trash containers for the city streets.

Councilman Ken Brown explained, at the council's regular meeting last Tuesday, that he had talked with Public Works Department Superintendent William Askew and had been told the department's employees were complaining the present trash containers were too small.

The department, Brown said, would like to change the small ones for larger ones which public works employees would make up at an estimated cost of $47 each. Brown added that an estimated 105 containers would be needed.

Assistant City Administrator Ralph Cowen told the council that a certain amount of money from the hostelry tax could go to the project or the council could "dip into the contingency fund."

Councilman Barney Laiolo said he was not in accord with the number of containers which would be needed. He said there could be a possibility of reducing the number of containers on streets that aren't so heavily traveled. He added that financing construction of the containers would be a "good project for clubs." He joined the other councilmen in a unanimous vote for the $1,000 appropriation.

60 legislators to stump for Proposition 20

Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti and Senate President Pro Tempore James R. Mills have announced the formation of a "Legislators Committee for Proposition 20," the California coastline initiative.

Mills and Moretti reported that 60 legislators of both parties have accepted an active role on the committee. They will travel throughout the state speaking in support of the coastal measure and will attend fund-raising events.

The committee includes 17 State Senators and 43 Assemblymen; 13 Republicans and 47 Democrats.

"Protection of California's coastline is vital to all the people of California," said Moretti.

"The same special interests who killed coastline legislation in Sacramento are now trying to kill Proposition 20. They are working against the public interest. We will do everything possible to insure their defeat—and the success of Proposition 20."

Mills and Moretti noted that this is the first time so many State legislators have publicly endorsed an initiative measure.

All about the Olympics

"I CAN only make observations of what I've seen or heard, (about the Olympics) because goodness knows, I'm not an expert," James Glaser of Pebble Beach told 110 members of the High Twelve Club at their weekly luncheon meeting at La Playa Monday.

Glaser, president of the Coca Cola Bottling Company in Salinas, was in charge of the public relations for the equestrian events at the 1972 Olympics.

"I first got into international equestrian competition in 1955," Glaser told the men who are members of the Masons, "with the Pan American games in Mexico. There have been few Olympics or Pan Am games since in which I haven't been involved in either an official or semi-official capacity."

Glaser, speaking to the assemblage as though they were thoroughly familiar with the specifics and events of last month's Munich affair, said that he had never seen organization similiar to what was obtained in this Olympics. "It was the most amazing thing I've ever seen," he repeated. "For example, they didn't have one electric timer for the swimming competitions, they had two, on separate circuits."

Glaser, holding up his official's badge, said that the security was such that the badge got him into the equestrian events, and he could enter those only with his badge, which also let him into "only a small portion of Olympic Village.

"This is important in light of the horrible tragedy that took place.

"The world is our guest," James Glaser said, speaking German and translating the phrase into English. "That was the slogan in Munich. I am fortunate enough to speak several languages, and a man on the street told me 'What a wonderful opportunity is ours. We can show what a country is ours. We're not Nazis.' That rug was pulled out when the disaster came.

"I was shocked at the negativism back here," Glaser said, citing as one example given him, "horrible" judging.

"You and 800-900 million people were looking down that tube watching things which the officials there couldn't see. I saw replays of equestrian jumping. One competitor had a bad round and on the television screen I could see why by his take off.

"In the case of the dressage, which is comparable to figure skating, there is a panel of five judges. They aren't allowed consultation and their scores are totaled with the highest and the lowest scores thrown out.

"What good are the Olympics?" he asked rhetorically. "What good is a sporting event of any sort?

"The Olympics are such joyous days for every participant and each of them is a part of the crowds, 80,000 in the stadium, 50,000 or 60,000 at Rehms the day of the equestrian endurance tests. In a time when we have so much competitive partisanship, there were not national differences in the crowds' support.

"I don't know if you saw him on television, the Ugandian who won the 400 meter hurdles. After he won, he went on around that stadium, that high," Glaser held his arm straight out, "above the ground. The joy on that man's face was like 'I want you to share this wonderful joy that is mine.'"

The crowd shared it. "'Everybody helped me,' he told me afterward," meaning the spectators.

"WHY the games? What's the use of any athletic event? When 121 countries are in the games, you're competing against the best people in the world in that particular event. When you win a medal, it's something you can't describe when you're standing up there on that stand. Sure it's nationalistic, but for Pete's sake, let's be proud we're American.

"We all think the event we're in is the most important," said Glaser, who commented that several of the members of the U.S. Equestrian three-day team have competed at equestrian events in Pebble Beach, "but I think the equestrians have the greatest prestige of any event. In the Pan Am games and the Olympics, the closing ceremony - which has to me a lot of emotion in it - with two rounds of jumping, the only athletic event.

"I think it expresses the feeling they have over there about equestrian competitions."

Glaser saw Jim Ryun's "regrettable fall" and Mark Spitz' swim ("You've never seen anyone practically walk the water like he does.") and the closing ceremony where "the participants mingled together as people, as friends, not countries.

"It's a very wonderful thing. Gentlemen," Glaser closed, "Let's not burn the house down to get rid of the mice."

AS IT developed from the

LIONEL SMITH of Pebble Beach, a member of the reception committee, straightens up the name plates while J.R. Leslie in the background kids him.

JAMES GLASER of Pebble Beach (center) after his talk, visits with High Twelve President Leif Erickson (right) of Carmel and Col. Charles G. Rau of Pebble Beach. Col. Rau was on the 1952 Olympic shooting team. He told Glaser that in 1928 while he was a student at West Point, he rode a mare over the Olympic equestrian practice course. "I had an old mare," he said. "She had no business on that course. I ended up with a dislocated shoulder."

"NOW TAKE ME seriously," Gordon Cubbison of Carmel Point (center), said to Earle Gardner of San Antonio, while R.N. McPherson of Pebble Beach looks on. Gardner was teased by High Twelve members because he was born in Rabbit Hash, Kentucky, but by golly, it turned out that one of the local High Twelve members knew the place.

questions which High Twelve members asked following Glaser's talk, the audience had watched the Olympics carefully on television and were disturbed by such problems as amateurism; why women compete against men in the equestrian events; the swimmer who had his medal taking away from using the illegal asthmatic medicine; and the wisdom of kicking South Africa out of the games.

One interesting point made by Glaser regarding amateurism is that up until 1948, the American Horse Show team, which represented this country at international competitions was composed of U.S. Cavalry, yet they were riding as "amateurs." "We're just as much to blame as other countries. We wouldn't want them legislating what our amateur status is," Glaser told the audience, who laughed when he answered that the reason women compete against men in the equestrian events is "a lot of them ride a darn sight better than men."

"High Twelve," says President Leif Erickson, of the organization, "is a symbol of refreshment - it means the time we stop our labors and have refreshments." C.H.

PAUSING AFTER HIS SPEECH to shake James Glaser's hand was Ted D. Urbahns of Carmel.

Dr. Bennett to address Woman's Club

Dr. Margaret E. Bennett will address the Carmel Woman's Club at their Monday meeting at 2 p.m. on the subject, "Something for the Girls."

Dr. Bennett has graduate degrees from Stanford, and has taught in California and Michigan schools and colleges. She was director of guidance and personnel work in California schools and for the State Department in Germany.

She is a member of the Altrusa Club and is Active in local organizations and is listed in the British "World Wide Who's Who of Women."

Hostesses at the event will be Mmes. F.D. Tellwright, A. Templeman, Effie Theobold, C.A. Trumbly, Ralph Ullestad and T.D. Urbahns.

Alliance members share summer travel experiences

MEMBERS of the Alliance Francaise shared summer travel experiences last week at "such a delightful tea party" at the home of James and Joelle Hathaway. Joelle is the honorary president and counselor of l'Alliance.

Still mid-air with nostalgia was the new president of l'Alliance, Dr. Danielle Cooper (chairman of the French Department of the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies) who had just returned from a six week stay in her native France.

A fellow French traveler was Nicole Longfellow of Carmel Valley, who traversed the length and width of her native country, visiting places she'd never been before.

Another Carmel Valley resident, Jacqueline Flavin opted for a more rigorous vacation. She went to Wyoming to learn to paddle a canoe down rapids.

The Jacques Ilbeks of Pebble Beach went to Mexico for swimming, fishing, and sunning. Also resting and recreating in Mexico was Malu Jacobs of Carmel.

Jehanne Carlson of Carmel, who travels constantly, stayed right here as did another Carmelite member of l'Alliance, Phyllis Jervey, The Pine Cone "Party Plans" columnist.

According to Phyllis, "so many of the members had traveled across their homeland this summer that our meeting was almost a travelogue in itself as we listened to their impeccable French resumes."

Weller photographing for the Army

ARMY PRIVATE First Class Theodore R. Weller Jr., whose parents live in Carmel, is serving as a photographer with the 23rd support group in their headquarters company in Korea.

Weller entered the army in January of 1972. A graduate of Carmel High School, he was last stationed at Ft. Monmouth, N.J.

Freeman to speak at Carmel Foundation meeting

Ambassador Fulton Freeman will be the guest speaker at the regular Wednesday program presented by the Carmel Foundation Oct. 18 at 2:30 at Fellowship Hall in the Church of the Wayfarer. His topic will be "The Institute and its role in the community."

Although a native Californian, Freeman was educated at Lingnan University in China and Princeton University in New Jersey as well as at California's Pomona College. His adult career has been, for the most part, in the U.S. Foreign Service, starting as vice consul in Mexico City, then Language Attache in Peiping, China where he was interned by the Japanese following Pearl Harbor.

After a U.S.-Japanese exchange of diplomatic personnel he returned home on the Swedish ship Gripsholm. Thereafter he again had assignments in China both at Chungking and Peiping which lasted until 1948. Upon his return he became Acting Director of the State Department's Office of Chinese Affairs.

After attending the National War College he had successive tours of duty in Rome, Norfolk, Virginia, Latin American and South Africa and Brussels. In 1961 President Kennedy appointed him U.S. Ambassador to Colombia, and in 1964 President Johnson chose him as our ambassador to Mexico.

His retirement from the Foreign Service came in January, 1969 after 30 years of service, but his retirement was only temporary as he assumed the duties of president of the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies in February of that year, a post he currently holds.

Freeman's presence on the Monterey Peninsula has had a multi-faceted impact. His particular interest in music makes him an enthusiastic jazz musician on trombone and bass and he also plays with chamber music groups. During the Old Monterey Bicentennial he had an important role as liaison with many of his friends among Mexican officials which enriched the Bicentennial program.

The Carmel Foundation is pleased to welcome its members and guests to Freeman's talk. Tea will follow at Town House.

Bill Burleigh's dad publishes third bird book

THOMAS D. BURLEIGH, 77 of Monterey (Bill Burleigh's father - Bill is Carmel city attorney) just published his third bird book, titled Birds of Idaho, publisher, Caxton Printers Ltd. of Caldwell, Idaho.

Thomas dedicated the book to his wife, Dorothy, which delighted and surprised her -- she didn't know he'd done it until they received their copies of the book.

The first book that Thomas Burleigh wrote was Brids of Newfoundland, his second, Brids of Georgia.

Birds have always fascinated him, reports Bill, who says that his father is retired from the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The elder Burleigh, subject of a Ford Times article several years ago, has written articles about birds for journals for years.

Thomas Burleigh also collects birds. ("That's part of the ornithologist's profession," says Bill who used to hunt with his father, but confesses he had trouble trying to skin the birds -- "It was a disaster.")

After shooting the birds with very light birdshot, Burleigh stuffs them. Thousands of his birds are on exhibit at the Smithsonian Institute, mostly from the United States and Newfoundland, but some are included from trips he took to Cuba and Mexico.

Bill says his parents moved to the Peninsula two years ago because they like it here and three of their grandchildren live here. Bill has a brother in Colorado and a sister in Idaho.

Everts hold ribbon-cutting party in Santa Cruz

BALLERINA Renee Wurzmann of Carmel danced the solo from Swan Lake around the pool of a new apartment complex in Santa Cruz (with the same name as the dance) for luncheon guests as part of a party given by Mrs. William (Glori) Evert of Carmel Wednesday, Sept. 27, in honor of the ribbon cutting opening of the buildings.

Jean Canada sang to the celebrants and a classical guitarist provided background music for the luncheon guests who also enjoyed libations of champagne.

Ribbon-cutting honors (with gold scissors) were performed by William Evert, owner and developer of Swan Lake Apartments. He is the owner of the William Evert Company of Monterey and the president and founder of Jiffy Food Stores Company.

Phone problems

VIOLET BEAHAN says that some of the telephones were out of order last weekend in Mission Fields.

Hers was among the dead ones and she was expecting some calls about the symphony -- she's manager – which she needed to have come through.

She called the telephone company (on a good telephone) to report the dead telephones, and the company spokesman said such things as they couldn't fix the underground lines over the weekend since they were understaffed, etc.

"If there was a snowstorm, you'd do something," Violet told them indignantly.

Violet checked again with the telephone company Monday morning and found that Ma Bell had investigated over the weekend, but hadn't done anything because "there were bees in the box and we didn't have a bomb."

115 volunteers needed for brain damage victim

One hundred and fifteen volunteers are desperately needed to help Mrs. Malcolm (Dorothy) Jones of Carmel perhaps recover the mobility she lost as a result of brain injury from a fall off a horse June 8, 1971 in Carmel Valley.

Dorothy, who was active in Suicide Prevention and was a PTA president at Carmel Woods school, needs special physical therapy, called patterning, three times a day, every day of the week.

Otherwise, the mother of three children ages 12, 21 and 24, will eventually die.

In patterning, which was developed by Doman Delacato, five volunteers move the arms, legs and head of a patient in a specific sequence. The object is to tutor healthy brain cells to direct muscles.

Dorothy has had two operations, (one lasting eight hours, the other, 12) to remove damaged parts of her brain. Nothing more can be done medically. However, there is some hope that Dorothy, now back home from the convalescent hospital with her husband Malcolm, a welfare department caseworker, can read.

According to Mrs. Ann Gonzales (372-4865) of Volunteers in Action who is coordinating the volunteer effort, anyone can pattern after a little practice.

A film demonstrating patterning will be shown Sunday evening at 7 p.m., Ann says, at the Monterey Presbyterian Church for those volunteers interested in helping Dorothy Jones. Speaking to the Sunday audience will be Mrs. Barbara J. Hardy of Clayton, Calif., a cybernetic developmentalist.

Greenbergs have house guest

DR. AND MRS. IRVING GREENBERG (he's music critic for The Pine Cone) are entertaining a relative, Marjory Sadowsky, late of New York and newly of a Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. suburb.

This is Mrs. Sadowsky's first visit to Carmel. She is an artist who used to design with metal in quartz.

Pat Sadowsky, her daughter, has visited the Greenberg's in Carmel however. Pat, the fashion coordinator for Seventeen Magazine, "works very hard," says Irving, who reports that he and his wife, Beatrice, had a call recently from Pat at midnight New York time, and she was still at her office working.

Marjory will be here for one or two weeks before returning to Florida.

Delta Gammas hold luncheon meeting

Alumnae of the Delta Gamma sorority chose one of the warmest of the fall days (last Thursday) to hold a luncheon meeting at the Ocean Road home of Mrs. Robert (Harriet) Allen overlooking Bird Rock in Pebble Beach.

Harriet's assistant hostesses were Mrs. Roy (Anita) Lasseter of Pebble Beach, Mrs. Jack (Ione) Miller of Carmel, and Mrs. William (Maene) James of Carmel Valley.

A report was made of the Delta Gamma National Centennial Convention held in June at the Century Plaza Hotel in Beverly Hills where Mrs. Ralph (Peg) Hunner of Carmel Valley was awarded the Golden Anchor in honor of her attendance at her 11th national convention over a period of 65 years. Others attending the convention from this area were Mrs. Jean Gibbs of Carmel, Mrs. William (Nancy) Ballard of Carmel, and Mrs. Yale (Marjorie) Martz of Carmel Valley.

Attending last Thursday's meeting were Mrs. Sid (Gingi) Williams of Carmel, president; Mrs. John (Jeanette) McDaniel of Carmel Highlands, treasurer; Mrs. Estle Brown, secretary; and Mrs. William (Nancy) Ballard of Carmel, membership chairman.

Carmelite members at the meeting were Mrs. John (Betty) Manning, Mrs. Oscar (Eleanor) Maddaus, Mrs. Richard (Pat) Sipple, and Margo Hyatt. Others present were Mrs. Ralph (Peg) Hunner, Mrs. Frank (Pixie) Geeseman, Mrs. B.J. (Lois) Scherer, and Mrs. F.H. (Florence) Larsen of Pebble Beach.

The next date on the DG calendar is an informal no-host luncheon at The Briar House, beginning at noon, Wednesday, Nov. 1. Reservations are being taken by Jan McDaniel, 624-8152.

A special welcome is extended to Delta Gammas among service wives who may have recently arrived in this area, or any others who have not been in touch with the local Alumnae Association.

Carmel life

An 8 pound-13 ounce case of the flu

BY THE TIME Karen Elizabeth Strutynski was born, Saturday, Sept. 23, her parents, Kathryn and Alfred, were used to the idea that she was a reality.

But not at first.

Kathryn, a wife of 15 years, had been told by doctors that she couldn't conceive. So when she was suffering an upset stomach during Hong Kong flu season ("I really think I had the flu") and it continued and continued, it just seemed to be the longest flu case in history.

Four months pregnant, Kathryn finally found out differently. Her doctor called them on Sunday to tell them the news. "I couldn't believe it," Kathryn says, and continues, "Alfred was really disbelieving!"

Karen Elizabeth (they're calling her by both names) weighed a hefty eight pounds and 13 ounces when she was born.

All her grandparents are deceased, but the infant's parents are thrilled enough for everyone.

Alfred is an accountant and Kathryn, until she became a mother, was a computer programmer at the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School.

The Strutynskis have lived in Carmel since 1963.

Hudson goads sanitary district board to buy Odello land

"All we can give you tonight is the assurance that this matter" is still being considered and that the board is working on the possibility, Carmel Sanitary District's board President Earl Moser told Tom Hudson at Tuesday night's regular board meeting.

Hudson's insistence that the board "exercise leadership" and take some definite action toward the acquisition of Odello, Fish and Point Lobos acreage for inland disposal, generated no action from the board other than assurances that it will continue to look into the matter.

Hudson had come before the board with a proposition which he had initiated months ago. He told the board his proposal would: (1) Achieve an area for inland disposal of the effluent from the sanitary district plant and (2) Assist in the preservation of open space at Point Lobos and the Fish properties.

Some of the acreage, he said, is involved in negotiations for sale to the state and some of the property is being considered for dedication of open space and development rights to the state.

The properties in question, Hudson said, could be purchased by the city of Carmel through its room tax revenues and by the sanitary district through bond funds already on hand. The remainder of the property could be purchased through a system of matching funds from the federal government if dedicated as open space.

Moser interrupted Hudson to say that "as far as I'm concerned you need not establish the fact that 292 acres could take a considerable part of the present effluent."

One of the advantages of the scheme, Hudson continued, is that it wouldn't take any additional taxation except that under the authority of the sanitary district.

It would be, he said, saving the slopes of the Fish property and the frontal approaches to Point Lobos and the Odello artichoke fields. The sanitary district and Carmel, according to Hudson, would save both sides of Highway 1 and the frontal approaches to Point Lobos and federal funding would conserve the frontal slopes of the Fish property.

He added that though the proposition would not take all the effleunt, it would take most of it.

"First of all," Moser told him, "I for one have not ignored your previous proposition, but I do have definite reservations in my mind as to the various elements in the proposition."

If the land could be offered at a reasonable price, he said, "I for one would be in favor of using the land for inland disposal."

Hudson objected to discussing prices because a public discussion of the question could jeopardize the project.

Moser said he could understand Hudson's reluctance to make public certain details he would want to see happen and Hudson told him he was not at all reluctant to make public "what I want to happen.".

He was just asking the board, Hudson said, to see a possible solution to its problem of disposal.

Moser said "there have been unofficial communications between certain jurisdictions about the Odello acres" but that he could not say more at that time. The board, he added, was "not in a position to consider the proposal at this time."

The state, Hudson continued, would acquire the development rights to the slopes of the Fish ranch and the present use would not be changed. At Point Lobos, he said, he would give up the underlying fee and the development rights to the property. Federal funding would reimburse Fish for the development rights and "we're providing the matching property for federal funding for the Fish slopes."

If the board doesn't take action, Hudson asked, where would the board go for inland disposal? What the proposal takes is some "dynamic leadership," he added.

Hudson asked the board for a definite date on which he could meet with the board and representatives of the city of Carmel and Moser told him that could not be done, but that Hudson should go ahead with the plan.

"That's not going to save the land," Hudson said and added that they'll turn to development and that certainly won't save the land.

"If you don't acquire the land, you're not going to keep putting it in the ocean, are you?" Hudson asked and Moser told him "we're going to put it in the ocean tomorrow."

Moser did say, however, that the board realizes there is a possibility "that we may have to put it someplace other than the ocean."

Board Member Herman W. Schull commented that one of the things the board doesn't know is how much effluent the Fish slopes will absorb. Hudson told him that it wouldn't take long for a study and Moser repeated that the board will continue to look into the matter.

Discussions have been held, Moser said, and "I for one have hope that the Odello land could be used for disposal." It comes down, he said, to the matter of the number of dollars involved from the people who make up the sanitary district. "I for one am in favor of proceeding."

Member J.W. Lewis added that the board can proceed with following up "something like this and I still think there's hope."

IN OTHER business, the board agreed to draw up a resolution hiring the Hopkins Marine Station laboratories to conduct sampling and analyses of Carmel Bay. The laboratories will conduct a water monitoring program over a 12 month period at a cost of $17,380.

Moser said the contract would call for two sampling periods of April and September for purposes of comparison. Member James B. Pruitt added that the board is vitally interested in "knowing what the impact of the new outfall location is."

Hudson protested that the board would go ahead with the contract without public discussion and Moser told him a copy of the monitoring information would be sent to him but that the resolution approving this contract will be presented at the next board meeting.

Moser also read a report on the projections of the board's future capital needs which was sent to the State Water Resources Control Board. They were:

(1) 1974-75 - It is possible that the Carmel Valley collection line will be built to Mid-Valley at an estimated cost of $2 million.

(2) 1974-75 - additional sludge treatment facilities and support buildings and equipment would be required. Cost: $600,000.

(3) 1975-76 - Capital expenditure if the discharge into Carmel Bay results in ecological disruption. Three solutions were recommended: a. extend outfall, b. advanced waste treatment, c. other methods of disposal. Cost: $4 million

(4) 1976-77 - construction of either collection lines or treatment disposal facilities for the Highlands. Cost: $1.6 million.

Undefeated Padres battle to 6-6 tie

"It was a defensive game and the defense for both teams was outstanding," Jason Harbert, head football coach for the Carmel Padres said of Carmel High's 6-6 tie game with North Salinas High Saturday afternoon in Carmel. The up-to-then undefeated and untied Carmel team did not get its hoped-for fourth straight victory in non-league action.

"The whole defensive unit played well," Coach Harbert said, allowing the Vikings only two first downs in the entire game. Defensive end Chris Poehlmann, linebacker Mike Merlo, lineman Wade Gaasch, defensive lineman Rod Deas, linebacker Mike Ford and defensive halfback Jerry Argust played, according to Harbert, an "outstanding defensive game."

First-quarter action seemed to be the beginning of another winning game for the Padres with quarterback Tony Lucido completing five passes for 86 yards, one a 38-yard scoring strike to flanker Argust. At this point, the defense had not yet allowed a first down.

With a little over a minute to go in the first half, Carmel had a first down on the Viking five-yard line and a score seemed imminent. Lucido dropped back to pass and tried to get the ball between two defensive players to his intended receiver, but Viking Ernie Perez grabbed the ball and outraced Lucido down the sidelines to score on a 101-yard run. The score was 6-6 and remained that way until the end of the game.

Harbert said the offense was moving along well until Lucido got tackled in the second quarter and the offense couldn't get moving after that. Lucido, Harbert said, felt better after sitting out the third quarter and went back into the game in the fourth quarter but the offense just couldn't score.

The Padre defensive unit, he emphasized, did a tremendous job of stopping the Vikings. If the Padre offensive team couldn't score then neither could the Viking team move with the Carmel defense holding them back.

The coach added that Jerry Argust did a "good job of running," with David Irwin and Mike Brock doing "some fine blocking in the line."

The Padres play their first Mission Trails Athletic League game tomorrow (Friday) at 8 p.m. in Santa Cruz against the undefeated Marello Prep team in Harvey West stadium.

"They're (Marello) 4-0, they haven't lost yet," Harbert said, "it should be quite a game."

He added that the junior varsity team will play in the same stadium at 6 p.m.

Germany builds great luxury cars. BMW is the one that shows how much you know about them.

One thing you always get as standard equipment with any German luxury car is a great feeling of prestige.

However, if you're more interested in a different kind of prestige, the kind that comes with knowing you own the best engineered luxury car for the money, you should be considering the new BMW Bavaria.

The Bavaria is fast. It will cruise all day at 120 mph with no strain. Thanks to an amazingly efficient smooth and turbine-like ohc engine — the most advanced of its kind in the world.

The Bavaria is sure. Its rear wheels never change camber no matter how rough the road. Thanks to the most sophisticated suspension system ever conceived.

BMW's new Bavaria is also exceedingly comfortable with interior appointments and fittings that are tasteful rather than decadently plush. The whole emphasis is on go instead of show.

If you're shopping for the world's most prestigious car — a true Germany luxury car, better see every model. Then, if you can recognize a great buy in luxury engineering, you'll find there's really only one choice.

Art by William Minor on view at MPC

An exhibit of drawings, paintings and prints by William Minor, English instructor at Monterey Peninsula College, is now being shown in the MPC Bookstore through Oct. 20.

Minor, primarily an English teacher, has been active as an artist for several years. He studied art at the University of Michigan, Pratt Institute and the University of Hawaii. He received a master's degree in drawing and painting from the University of California at Berkeley. He has exhibited at the Pennsylvania Academy, the Smithsonian Institute and the San Francisco Museum of Art, as well as at other national galleries.

The artist's subjects vary from local landscape to mythology. Ink pen drawings and acrylic paintings of the former, both representational and abstract, were done on a bike tour of the coast this summer. Woodcut prints are based on Greek, Russian and Hebrew myth and lore.

About 40 pieces will be shown in the exhibit, which is open to the public. Most of the art on display was completed this summer. The MPC Bookstore is located in the College Center.

Explosion of color and form at Art Association exhibit

The distinct individuality of James Vance's work asserts itself this month in a group exhibition of new paintings and sculpture by artist members of the Carmel Art Association now on public view in the lobby and main room of the Association's gallery at Dolores near Sixth.

Vance's eye-catching construction, which transforms a former oak commode into a Victorian dwelling-typerooming house, captivates the gallery visitor entering the premises and sets the spirit of the entire exhibition which may be described as an explosion of color set off by 27 painters and two sculptors.

Immediately to the right of the entrance to the main room housing the show are two brilliant red-orange canvases, "Golden Gate" by Y.S. Lim and "Vele Rosse" by Leo Braico. Repeating thte fiery brilliancy of these canvases is a large oil of flowers, titled "Golden Bowl" by George De Groat and a smaller watercolor of red-gold flowers, titled "Summer Bloom" by Jeanne Bellmer.

Meanwhile "Outdoor Cafe," by Helen Dooley, shatters the two-dimensional picture surface with mosaic-like rectangles of high-key color, introducing thereby an off-and-on incandescent note substantiating the liveliness of the color moving about the room in the diverse works of art. This same scintillating fractured color quality is picked up by Pat Cunningham's painting of Portofino and reiterated by John Cunningham's "Point Lobos."

Finally, with Merilyn Brown's large untitled canvas, the show soars into space, where lyrical linear movements are repeated by curiously identical movements in Fritz Abplanalp's bird sculpture titled "Call of the Sea."

All is brought quite suddenly to earth by Barclay Ferguson's tactile rendering of an eroded tree stump and Don Bloom's "Brown Sunset." The gaiety of the exhibition is thereupon greyed down on the East wall of the room by a sequence of nostalgic canvases recalling the past when the West was a land of wide open spaces pockmarked by grazing cattle herds and silent barns.

Helen Barker and Jack Bevier render two such barns in their respective paintings while Jerry Van Megert's "Mt. Shasta" establishes the sense of space characteristic of times past.

The exhibition will continue through the month of October and is open to the public during regular gallery hours, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, including Sundays.

Stone, Keatinge, Morrill new members of Art Association

Two painters, William F. Stone Jr. and Elizabeth Keatinge, as well as a sculptor, Donald D. Morrill, were elected to membership in the Carmel Art Association by the Association's board of directors Monday evening at the organization's headquarters.

The work and dossiers of 16 applicants for membership in the Association were reviewed and the above-named were selected to join the organization as artist members.

Stone, a Peninsula resident for eight years, received his art training at San Jose State College, the University of California and the School of Medical Illustration in Boston, Mass. He is currently president of the board of directors of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, a member of the Pacific Grove Art Center and the San Jose Art League. He has won awards for his work at the U.N. Show in San Jose. Stone maintains his home and studio in Pacific Grove and teaches art at the Carmel High School.

Watercolor painter Elizabeth Keatinge has studied with Eliot O'Hara N.A., George Post A.W.S., Jade Fon A.W.S., and Tom Elliot M.F.A. She is a member of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, Society of Western Artists and the Oakland Art Assn. She has exhibited widely including the San Francisco Museum of Art, the Oakland Art Museum, California State Fair, San Francisco Art Festival, de Saisset Art Museum, Santa Clara and the American Artists Professional League. In addition to having had many one-man shows Elizabeth Keatinge is represented in numerous private collections in New York, London and Geneva, Switzerland.

Sculptor Donald D. Morrill maintains his home and studio in Pebble Beach, and has developed his art largely through eight years of intensive personal research and experimentation. He has exhibited at the Village Artistry Gallery in Carmel and the Carlson Gallery in Mendocino.

A special display of the work of these new members will be presented to the public shortly at the Association's gallery, Dolores near Sixth.

Johnson watercolors on display at Art Association

"Take a trip to Switzerland and bring Switzerland back with you" seems to be the lesson offered by a group of watercolors by Carmel Art Association artist Nancy Johnson now on display in the Association's watercolor room through Oct. 31.

Recalling the intimate delicacy of the English watercolor technique and Beatrix Potter renderings, Miss Johnson's works developed from a series of sketches and quick studies she made this summer while conducting a special teaching-tour for a special study group traveling the Swiss countryside and cities.

Nancy Johnson, popular teacher in the Carmel Adult School, was born in Minneapolis, Minn. and studied at Hartnell College, Salinas and at San Jose State College. She also pursued her studiues in the workshops of George Post, Rex Brandt, Richard Yip and Edgar Whitney. She has exhibited at the Monterey County Fair, the Santa Cruz Statewide Competition and the Pacific Grove Annual Watercolor Exhibition. Currently she is conducting classes in outdoor sketching and watercolor at the Carmel Adult School.

The exhibition of Miss Johnson's works is open to the public during regular gallery hours, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, including Sundays.

Carmel Mission

The officers and members of Court Carmel Mission, Catholic Daughters of America, are planning to attend the district meeting for CDA members in the dioceses of Monterey and Fresno on Saturday, Oct. 21 in Hollister.

State Regent Marie Miraglia will preside at the meeting to be held in O'Reilly Youth Center beginning at 10 a.m. A luncheon is planned at Paine's restaurant.

Other state officers will assist Mrs. Miraglia of San Leandro in presenting information, which in turn will be taken back to their local courts by the delegates.

Catholic Daughters of America is the largest organization of Catholic women in the world, with a total of 200,000 members, 15,000 of them in California.

Carmelites attending the district meeting will be: Mrs. Richard (Genevieve) Edwards, Regent; Mrs. Laura King, Vice Regent; Mrs. James (Mai) McGrury, Treasurer; Mrs. Paul (Julia) Chalmers, financial secretary and Mrs. Frank (Jean) Talorica, secretary.

All Saints

The Rev. David Hill will begin a series of sermons on "Problems in Christian Living," this Sunday at All Saints' Episcopal Church. The title of his 11 a.m. sermon will be "CHANGE AND STABILITY." The eucharist is celebrated Sundays at 8 and 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Sunday School classes are held at 9:45 a.m.

Next Wednesday a special celebration of the Eucharist in honor of St. Luke the Evangelist will be held at 6 p.m. in All Saints. The vestry will attend, and following a light supper in Grant Hall, will hold their monthly meeting. Reports will be heard on the Day School fund drive, the progress of St. Matthias mission in Seaside and the fall "Every Member Canvass and Stewardship drive."

Community

At the 10:30 a.m. Sunday Worship Service of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, the Rev. Howard E. Bull will present the sermon, "Miracles and Talents."

The sermon will consist of stories of miracles and talents which came to ordinary men in Biblical times, and the amazing results of each.

The Youth Sermonette is "Steering by Stars."

Christian Science

"The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou will not despise."

The above verse from Psalms is included in this Sunday's Christian Science Lesson-Sermon entitled "Doctrine of Atonement," to be read as part of the services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel, Monte Verde at Sixth, held at 11 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

A related passage from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, states that: "Attonement is the exemplification of man's unity with God, whereby man reflects divine Truth, Life and Love."

"Lifting The Pressure from Decisions" is the subject of the program from the Christian Science radio series, "The Truth That Heals," that will be broadcast by Station KRML at 6:30 a.m. on Sunday.

ORDINANCE NO. 284 C.S.
AN ORDINANCE DEFINING "PAWNBROKERS" AND "PAWNSHOPS"

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1: Purpose: The City Council finds that pawnshops are inharmonious with village and small-town life, and that pawnshops and pawnbrokers are available to the public in surrounding and adjacent cities. Further, in order to carry out the zoning objectives of this City, as established in Section 1300 of the Planning and Zoning Code, and the General Plan of this City, which both state the desirability of Carmel's retaining its own particular local character, it is necessary to regulate and or prohibit certain types of businesses and business operations that would tend to dilute or destroy the character of Carmel's business community. Therefore, Part X of the Municipal Code is hereby amended as follows:

Section 2: Division 5, "DEFINITIONS", of Part X of the Municipal Code is hereby amended by the addition of the following Section:

1350.82 PAWNBROKER, PAWNSHOP: "Pawnbroker" shall mean any person engaged primarily in the business of lending money at interest on pledged or secured personal property. "Pawnshop" shall mean any business operated by a pawnbroker in which any merchandise is offered for retail sale to the general public.

Section 3. Effective Date: This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this third day of October, 1972.

CERTIFICATION OF ORDINANCE

I, the undersigned, City Clerk of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of City Ordinance No. 284, which has been published or posted pursuant to the laws of the State of California and the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

ORDINANCE NO. 60
AN ORDINANCE ESTABLISHING WORK WEEK AND PROVIDING FOR COMPENSATION FOR OVERTIME WORK.

The Board of the Carmel Sanitary District does ordain as follows:

ARTICLE I - GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 1 - WORK WEEK

The established work week shall begin at midnight Sunday and continue for seven consecutive days to midnight the following Sunday.

Section 2 - NORMAL WORK WEEK

The normal work week shall consist of the first five days in the established work week (40 hours).

Section 3 - SPECIAL SCHEDULES

Special work schedules may be established as deemed necessary for efficient operation.

Section 4 - PREMIUM PAY

Employees shall be compensated at premium rates of pay for all approved time worked in excess of forty (40) hours in an established work week or for work performed on holidays upon direction of the Manager.

Section 5 - PREMIUM RATE OF PAY

The premium rate of pay shall be equal to one and one-half times the regular rate of pay.

ARTICLE II - REPEAL OF EXISTING ORDINANCES, PART OF ORDINANCES AND RESOLUTIONS

This Ordinance repeals all ordinances and parts of ordinances and resolutions in conflict herewith.

ARTICLE III - PUBLICATION

The Secretary of the Board is instructed to have this Ordinance published once in the Carmel Pine Cone, a newspaper of general circulation published in the District. This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect one week from the date of its publication.

ARTICLE IV

If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, ineffective or in any manner in conflict with the laws of the United States, or of the State of California, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The Board of the Carmel Sanitary District hereby declares that it would have passed this Ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase be declared unconstitutional, ineffective, or in any manner in conflict with the laws of the United States or the State of California.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the Governing Board of the CARMEL SANITARY DISTRICT this 10th day of October, 1972, by the following vote:

AYES, and in favor thereof, Members: Lewis, Moser, Pruitt, Schull, Weller.

ORDINANCE NO. 283 C.S.
AN ORDINANCE AMENDING DEFINITIONS IN PART X OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1: That Part X, Division 5, "DEFINITIONS", be amended by the addition of Section 1351.16 to read as follows:

TRANSIENT: "Transient" means any person who exercises occupancy, or is entitled to occupancy of premises by reason of concession, permit right-of-access, license, or other agreement for a period of thirty (30) calendar days or less, counting portions of days as full days. Any such person so occupying space in a rooming house or lodging unit shall be deemed to be a transient until the period of thirty (30) days has expired unless there is an agreement between the operator and the occupant providing for a longer period of occupancy.

Section 2: In determing whether a person is a transient, uninterrupted periods of time extending both prior to and subsequent to the effective date of this Ordinance may be considered.

Section 3. Effective Date: This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

Parking for second car in side yard. There are 3 bedrooms, each with its own bath and private entrance. The living room is large and the kitchen is pleasant. The traffic isn't annoying and our friendly neighbor, the lumber yard, is clean and quiet -- and smells good. There's a fireplace and an excellent gas furnace. One bedroom has its own heating unit. This isn't a Carmel charmer but we like it and intend to live in it in a few years. It's modern and immaculate and a good place to live while you look for a house to buy (they start at $40,000). We will rent the whole house for $295, or all but one bedroom which we might use once a month, for $255. If you are interested and reliable, call Oakland (415) 525-4930 on Thursday, or Carmel (408) 624-8856 Friday late, Saturday or Sunday. Joseph Patrick.

OLD-FASHIONED COUNTRY KITCHEN FAMILY CENTER

Enjoy the cozy comfort of a raised brick hearth topped by a handsome natural-beam mantle, ideal for all your treasured bric-a-brac. Note the slanting chimney shape above the mantle which lends height and offsets the mass of the old brick, bringing the fireplace into proportion with the remainder of the combined family room and kitchen. There are similar excellent design features throughout this 4400 square foot home. There is another family area on the other side of the kitchen, an informal dining, family, or game center.

AIRY, SPACIOUS AND CHEERFUL

In addition, there is a spacious game room with ample space for a pool table. The formal centers of the home are an immense, elegantly-panneled living room and a large formal dining room. The master bedroom is spacious and there, as from all rooms, there are views of the patio gardens and the scenic mountain vistas.

All on a four acre parcel set in the splendor of Carmel Valley and completely fenced and landscaped to preserve the natural beauty of the area. Valued at $210,000. Well-worth seeing. Please call 659-2251, Carmel Valley Village, and arrange to see this magnificent estate.

Out of This World

And yet this magnificent home is only 3 miles out in sunny Carmel Valley on a choice knoll looking out on miles of the Valley hills. It's so restful on a small dead-end street with lovely oaks, handsome planting, birds and sun as your immediate environment. Yet it's handy to town, schools and shopping.

What a place for a family! Its 6 bedrooms are arranged so that the children have a whole wing to themselves including a family room with fireplace, hobby room, 3 baths plus access to the corral and rear yard.

Pictures can't do it justice but a short visit by you should convince you. If you're in need of a large home fairly priced at $115,000 you mustn't miss this one. Call now and we'll arrange to show you why!

This unique and fascinating property was created before Pebble Beach was even dreamed of, and has been in the same family for nearly half a century. The main house is darling, a veritable fairy tale cottage, it has a charming living room with a huge stone fireplace, den, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and one bath. The apartments are in a separate building, each with two bedrooms, kitchen and bath. And as if this were not enough, the owner will carry the financing! We indeed feel that this is a rare and choice listing. $98,500

The mayor's report

By BERNARD ANDERSON

Lagos, Nigeria
West Africa

Coming into this equatorial tropical area and seeing the lush growth of vegetation, Ithought of the difficulties faced by Forestry Commissioner Ray Taylor and City Forester Greg d'Ambrosio in saving Carmel's downtown pines from being scarred and broken by the bumpers of automobiles. In Casablanca I saw the solution. There, poles about 2½" x 3' are strung together like a snow fence and wrapped around the tree. A bumper may break a pole but you've saved the tree. Just think how that pine at the corner of Dolores and Ocean would have appreciated such protection in its youth!

Our son Jim met us at the airport in Lagos and helped us through a strict Customs. He certainly seems to be enjoying life in Lagos and his assignment with the U.S. government as a program analyst.

As a matter of fact I was made to feel at home myself on arrival at Jim's apartment. As we entered, a raucous voice called "Hi, Barney!" and Jim admitted that he had acquired a parrot sometime ago, and in anticipation of our visit had taught him to greet me. Needless to say "Festus" got an appreciative response from me - the "Polly Want a Cracker" routine. His reply to that was "Don't be silly, birds can't talk." Well, if they can't I'm still going to be careful what I say within earshot of that bird!

I met one of the engineers, BODE GEORGE, who helped build the KAINJI dam on the River Niger which supplies Lagos and 80 percent of Nigeria with electric power. Because of the huge hydroelectric potential there has been no need to utilize Nigeria's vast oil production for power. Nigeria's booming economy is evident everywhere. On the waterfront every wharf is occupied with ships from all nations discharging and loading cargo.

The emphasis being placed on education is impressive. Besides extensive primary and secondary schools, there are now six universities which compare well with those in the U.S. African art and culture have been given particular emphasis at IBADAN and the Medical School at the University of Lagos is excellent. Ethel and I visited both these campuses and heard that qualified students must be turned away at present because facilities cannot be prepared rapidly enough to take care of the need. But the government is assigning more funds and there are many buildings under construction at both campuses. Most of the professors we met are Nigerians educated in the U.S., England or France.

Jim wanted his mother to visit DAHOMEY and TOGO where he spent his Peace Corps assignment so we have been at COTONOU and LOME the past three days. In these former French colonies, life proceeds at a more leisurely pace than in Nigeria. Since very few foreigners speak Cabrai, one of the principal dialects of Togo, the Customs and Immigration border officials gave Jim the VIP treatment when he spoke to them in CABRAI and MA-MA and PA-PA were also waved through with no inspection of luggage and happy handshakes all around.

I was surprised to see the development that has taken place in Lome since I visited here in 1969. Streets are paved, a large phosphate plant is operating, new cement and marble plants have been built, lovely residences are proliferating on the waterfront, fine office and government buildings have been constructed, and there is a general air of increasing prosperity. Also, we have enjoyed the delicious French cuisine here.

Soon we shall be flying to Rome to visit friends and old associates there; then on to London for a short time and then home. It is hard to believe in the air-conditioned existence we live here, that in Carmel you are enjoying fireplace fires.

'Back to School' night set

Oct. 26 at high school

All parents of Carmel High School students are invited to attend Back to School Night on Thursday, Oct. 26, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Parents will have an opportunity to meet their child's teachers as they follow his schedule through a series of 10-minute "classes."

Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria, and Dr. Kenneth Bullock, new high school principal, will be on hand to meet informally with visitors. This will also be an opportunity to see the recently completed Brey Library.
